FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT made a good speech at Houston, free from personalities, full of common sense. This is unusual. The terrific bang of Mr. Claude Bowers' oratory impressed all. The windup of each speech, "The battle hour has struck. Pitch your tents, O Israel," Will Rogers, who says, "The best I never saw was one living [illegible]."

MR. BOWERS will tell Rogers that Abraham himself lived in a tent, moved about from place to place, with his flocks and herds. So did many of his relations when Ruz Carlsbad hotels were unknown.

A SURPRISING feature of the Houston convention was the result of Senator Robinson's appeal for absence of religious prejudice.

The appeal stirred several fossils. "The police swing night sticks," "Crackpots." Anybody who expects peace and good will out of differences in religious opinion is due for disappointment.

THE Rev. D. H. McDonald tells the Baptist World Alliance "37,000,000 human beings nominally Protestant entirely neglected. No church is out to get them."

WHY not try to find a dozen Billy Sundays and some more Moody Sankey teams to reach those 37,000,000? It should not be hard to see that crowd in eternal pain for eternal happiness, if you can't them BELIEVE.

IN this country we have one automobile for every five people. Every family could ride at the same time.

Abyssinia, with the fewest automobiles, has one car for every 10,743 people.

The 1,900,000,000 human beings on earth had 29,700,000 automobiles, 24,000,000 of them in the United States. We certainly are prosperous.

JAPAN passes "a peace preservation law," under which anybody advocating the government in secret societies, will be put to death. Members of associations hostile to the government, seeking to change the fundamental constitution, will go to jail for two years. Those conspiring against private property and the private ownership system will go to jail for 10 years. The Japanese know what they want and how to get it. Our power trust will yearn for that 10 year jail law—and perhaps get it some day.

REAR ADMIRAL BRADLEY A. FISKE offers a suggestion to discourage criminals.

The automobile is the criminal's "getaway." He drives up, robs a store, runs down objectors, jumps into his automobile, and is gone.

REAR Admiral Fiske suggests that following an automobile holdup, all auto traffic be stopped in the streets.

"I suggest that the police sound two or four whistles, all policemen ring it to pass it along. Traffic would stop, cars would be searched, a man ignoring the signal would be identified as a criminal."

ON warships, says Admiral Fiske, when men get out of control, the officer sounds "Attention!" Every man on board stands where he is or proceeds but remains motionless.

IN Houston's convention hall, colored people are separated from white by chicken wire screens. Colored men from the North call it "the first Jim Crow convention."

Northern Democrats protested discreetly against the arrangement, which, they all know, is the prevailing condition in the South.

In New York there are many colored voters that no longer vote for Abraham Lincoln, even going so far as to vote for a Democrat.

CANADA sent $8,000,000 in gold to bolster the Canadian dollar, a little sick. Our gold seems to have stopped going to Europe now that the French franc is stabilized.

WALL STREET was cheerful about that and some other things and put prices in spite of "call money" soaring at 7½ per cent.

For one thing Wall Street is not worrying about the national election. That helps.

It is possible to be too enthusiastic. Mrs. Corsellus, from New Jersey, joined the convention enthusiasm, holding a delightful hour or so. Senator Robinson remarked later, "The lady's hat was decked all with $20—yes $20 bills, four $5 bills and eight $1 bills—placed there." That is not the conventional idea of a [illegible]

SMITH STILL MISSING AFTER TWO MONTHS

Mystery of Disappearance Continues to Baffle County Officials

ONE BOND RUNS OUT

Action to Declare Office Vacant Moving Along at Slow Pace

Just two months ago today Charles L. Smith, 25, Marion county recorder mysteriously disappeared from the city.

Since April 29 a thorough search has been heard of here and today his disappearance remains as much a mystery as it was then. Although an examination of Smith's records by state examiners revealed that there was a shortage of $2,910.81 in his accounts at the time of his disappearance, there are many who believe that there are other reasons for his absence. These however, are only rumors and little credence can be placed in them.

After more than 60 days of city officials here as well as State officials have been watching the records which he was expected to appear at his office on Monday morning, April 30. Elected as a Democrat at the age of 22 in a presidential year that returned a landslide vote for Republican candidates, Smith was considered one of the most popular persons in the city of Marion. He is the youngest recorder ever elected in city.

Action Slow

Action to declare the office of recorder vacant and to replace Smith by an appointed official is apparently at a standstill. Other than a conference between county prosecuting attorneys and officials of the state attorney generals office nothing has been done in this direction. Due to the legal red tape involved in declaring an

18-DAY TRIP AROUND GLOBE IS UNDER WAY

Combined Air and Water Flight Planned by Aviators

New York, June 29.—Capt. C. B. Colliver, well-known pilot, and John Henry Mears, former holder of the record for the fastest trip around the world, hopped off from the battery at 5 o'clock this morning in a seaplane on the start of an attempt to girdle the globe by boat and plane in 18 days.

They planned to overtake the liner Olympic, which sailed at midnight, and board the steamship at sea. When the Olympic reaches England the aviators will fly across Europe, Siberia, China and to Yokohama. They will then journey to San Francisco by boat and fly from California to New York.

BLANKS FOR BUDGET ESTIMATES MAILED

Go to County, City, Township and Other Officials; Due Back July 20

Blanks for preparing the county, township, city and school district budgets for 1929 were mailed to the heads of the various county offices, township, village and school district clerks and to Marion city officials by County Auditor Earl E. Thomas today.

Two of the three blanks sent to each official are to be returned to the county auditor not later than July 20, according to Mr. Thomas. Shortly after this date the budget commission, composed of Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann, County Auditor Thomas and County Treasurer James E. Messenger, will meet to approve the budgets submitted by the taxing districts of the county.

LOGAN GAS CO. FILES ITS DEFENSE BRIEF

End of Long Fight of Cities Against Utility Is Foreseen

The Logan Gas Co. today filed its brief in defense of the proposed increased gas rates in Marion and other Ohio municipalities with the state utilities commission Columbus.

Upon the filing of the briefs of the protesting cities the matter will be taken under consideration by the utilities commission and announcement will be made whether the proposed rates are to be allowed or rejected.

With the filing of the cities and gas company's briefs it is expected that the long fight of the various Ohio municipalities and villages against the Logan Gas Co. will terminate with the decisions of the utilities commission which, it is said, will be announced shortly after the cities file their briefs in support of their contentions that the increase of gas rates should not be allowed.

Local Delegates Attend State Republican Convention at Columbus

Mrs. Emma Uhler Voorhees, president of the Marion County Chapter of the Ohio Council of Republican Women, was chosen to serve on the executive committee at a caucus of the eight district delegates at yesterday's session of the biennial state Republican meeting held in Memorial hall, Columbus. James R. Hagerman, state committee chairman of the caucus elected Mrs. Voorhees on the executive committee. Others chosen on the committee were Mrs. Ralph O. Bolton, Portsmouth, vice chairman; Mrs. Mary Sherwood, Cincinnati; Miss Ethel Hunt Sherwood, Cincinnati, secretary; Mrs. Ella Reeve Bloor, Woodsfield, national committeewoman, and C. H. Gilbert, Dayton, vice chairman.

REPUBLICANS AT COLUMBUS GIVE PLATFORM OK

Planks Pledge "Unqualified Support" to Candidacy of Herbert Hoover

CONVENTION CLOSES

Assails Democratic Administration for Neglect of Feeble-Minded

Columbus, June 29.—Pledging "unqualified support" to the presidential candidacy of Herbert Hoover and "deploring" the election code vetoed by Governor Donahey, the G. O. P. state platform, a structure in which were inserted 20 forceful planks, was offered to 4,000 Republicans at the closing session of the Republican state convention here today.

Besides strong support of the cabinet official and U. S. Senator Curtis, for vice president, the platform specifically endorsed the record of the Coolidge administration, approved the accomplishments of the last Republican general assembly, pledged the party to the adoption of a sound business policy and the support of measures to equalize and restrict taxation.

Protests Discrimination

Further the platform taking cognizance of the controversial subject of farm relief, pledged the party to "prevent any unjust discrimination against agriculture and industry." The platform condemned the "dilatory tactics" of the Democratic administration in "failing to provide" for the adequate housing and proper segregation of the feeble-minded.

Vocational training in penal institutions, advancement of education, the protection of labor, speedy settlement of workmen's compensation claims, reforestation, elimination of railroad grade crossings, equitable public utility rates, conscientious enforcement of speedy administration of criminal justice, condemnation of lynching, the erection of a new state office building, development and expansion of aviation, and the re-establishment of the state library all received approving consideration in the platform.

Candidates Talk

Demonstrations for nomination of candidates and the hearty singing by the assembled delegates and alternates of campaign songs predicting the election of Hoover and Curtis featured the initial session of the convention at Memorial hall late yesterday. Ad

DENIES SHOOTING AT MAHAFFEY HOME

Former Railroad Detective Also Declares He Does Not Know Ray Quigley

Calmly almost disinterestedly, John Mahaffey held by the police for investigation in the shooting of Raymond Quigley at the Mahaffey home on Pearl at Wednesday night, sat in the office of Chief of Police Thompson yesterday afternoon and denied not only any knowledge of the shooting, but further declared he did not know Quigley and had never seen him.

He did admit, however, to both Chief Thompson and City Prosecutor George Gerau, that he had been in the vicinity of his divorced wife's home, Wednesday night, but denied being there at the time the shooting is said to have taken place. His admission of being there followed a statement by his son John, that he had seen his father on South Pearl st. earlier Wednesday night.

NEW YORKER SELECTED ON FIRST BALLOT

Governor Smith Given Democratic Nomination Shortly Before Midnight in Houston Hall; Reed Gives "United We Stand" Talk

ARKANSAS SENATOR IS NOMINATED

Favorite Son Candidates Drop Out of Race as Big State Delegations Promise Support to Robinson; Harrison Takes Over Gavel This Afternoon

BY GEORGE E. HOLMES
Star Staff Correspondent

SAM HOUSTON HALL, Houston, Tex., June 29—Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas was nominated for the vice presidency by the Democratic national convention here this afternoon. Robinson's nomination came on the first ballot. He will be the running mate for Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York who was selected late last night as the Democratic choice for the presidency.

Conferences held in the early morning hours, and canvasses of certain powerful key delegations made it appear certain that the Arkansas senator who has presided over this convention as permanent chairman would be speedily nominated. As the convention assembled, word was passed around that the influential delegations from New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois would vote for Senator Robinson, and drag enough others along to give the senate leader a first ballot nomination.

Some of the favorite sons for the vice presidency were dropping off the tree this morning.

The apparent disposition was to let the Smith people finish the job of taking over the party assets and future. With Governor Smith in the saddle now and having been given the kind of a platform his friends said was satisfactory to him, there didn't appear to be any logic in sounding a discordant note at the very end of the song.

Names Drop Out

Indiana decided not to present the name of Evans Woollen, Tennessee declared Cordell Hull's name would not go before the convention and if it did would be withdrawn.

Nebraska decided not to put forward former Senator Gilbert N. Hitchcock.

Senator Robinson absented himself from the chairmanship of the convention, and it was called to order by Franklin D. Roosevelt, the nominator of Smith and his floor manager, emphasizing that this is a Smith convention.

It was 11:17 o'clock (Marion time) when the gavel fell.

Roosevelt didn't have much luck in getting them into their seats. The bands aided the confusion by playing "The Sidewalks of New York." It was the last day for the bandmasters to do their stuff and they did it.

At 11:30 o'clock the "Star Spangled Banner" brought everybody to attention, and order was obtained immediately thereafter.

Harrison Takes Gavel

The invocation was pronounced by Rabbi Eli Berkman of Houston, completing the circle of all faiths and creeds that have asked Divinity's blessing on Democracy's labors here.

Roosevelt then turned over the gavel to Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, and the popular Mississippian got a cheer, as he took it over.

Senator Harrison ordered the roll

'AL JUST ESCAPES JINX NOMINATION

Houston, Tex., June 29.—Al Smith, by six minutes, escaped being nominated on a Friday, a day which many women voters consider unlucky. It was 11:54 p. m. on Thursday (Houston time) that it was announced from the platform that Governor Smith was the Democratic presidential nominee.

The governor, according to members of Mrs. Smith's party attending the convention, is not superstitious—but plenty of other voters are. This group is on memories that the Wilson campaign managers in 1912 recognized no prejudices to the extent of slide tracking platform action on a Thursday to have Woodrow Wilson nominated before Friday rolled around.

Fighting Jim Reed Sounds Call for United Democracy

Houston, Tex., June 29 — Fighting Jim Reed of Missouri, under the penetrating klieg lights of Sam Houston hall at 4 o'clock in the morning, sounding a clarion call to arms—that is the picture that will remain forever to those who saw it in the Democratic national convention of 1928.

His close clipped snowy hair fairly bristling; it is stark, virile, young personified than the ruddy youngster's face it crowns. His eyes, fired by the battle glow, challenge the blinding power of the high-blue lights focused upon him from every angle.

"United we fall, the common [illegible]

Those delegates even leap from defeat to victory—for Reed was never beaten.

roll for the presentation of names for vice presidency.

Alabama, the first state called, sent up Judge Michael Sollie, who proposed the nomination of Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, who commanded the American forces during the Rhine occupation.

Arizona yielded to New Mexico and Senator Sam G. Bratton, the red headed junior senator of the state, took the platform and placed Senator Robinson's name before the convention.

Presents Robinson

"I come to give you a candidate," he said, "a native of the state of Arkansas—" There was a "Yip, yip" at this from the floor.

He sketched Senator Robinson's career—born in rural Arkansas, educated in the rural schools of his neighborhood, and later ambitious enough to study law," he described Robinson's upward climb to political eminence as due to his own unaided efforts. From a small political beginning, he traced "Fighting Joe's" career, from minor offices in Arkansas, to the governorship of the state, and finally to Washington, where he has now been a leader of his party in the senate for several years.

The Arkansas home folk grabbed up their standard and started through the aisles, and it wasn't but a few minutes until most of the standards in the hall were in the procession.

State banners that would not even bow to each other in the aisles during the Smith nomination now joined together in support of the Arkansan. New York's ensign rubbed along with those of Georgia and Texas. Illinois and South Carolina found something in common. Missouri and Pennsylvania and Ohio marched along together.

From the platform, it appeared that all the standards except Tennessee, Alabama, Kentucky and South Dakota were in the aisles.

King in Chair

After the demonstration had been in progress about 10 minutes, Senator King of Utah, who had meanwhile assumed the chair, began pounding for order.

When Arkansas was called on the roll she yielded to Massachusetts, and Senator David I. Walsh seconded the nomination in the name of his state.

"This convention," said Senator Walsh, "has broken a precedent in the choice of a candidate for the presidency. Let us not hesitate to shatter another precedent in the selection of our candidate for vice president."

Tribute from Walsh

He referred to the fact that Democratic conventions never go south for candidates.

"Let us here and now destroy the spirit of sectionalism by declaring that the residence in the southland does not constitute a barrier to political preferment in a Democratic convention."

Senator Walsh, himself a Catholic, paid glowing tribute to his colleague's fairness and ability in the leadership of the senate.

Veterans of San Francisco and New York could scarcely believe their eyes when they saw a Democratic platform adopted in open convention without a minority report even being offered on the floor within less than two hours after its presentation. And without a roll call vote. Hardly could they believe when their pencils told them that Al Smith, wet, a pillar of Tammany and a Roman Catholic to boot, was nominated on the first ballot with 849 2-3 out of a possible 1,100 votes.

Fail to Offer Motion

In the end, all of the state standards from southern states were found in the aisles marching behind those from the north and west, and with many of the southern delegations in step. For example, the final records will show that 23 of Tennessee's 24 votes were cast for Smith on the first ballot, and half of Mississippi's.

There were some die-hards among the southern states, of course. Texas, Alabama, Georgia, the two Carolinas, Florida, were recorded as casting no votes for Smith, for the traditional motion to make the nomination of the New York governor unanimous was not offered.

The convention reached crescendo proportions when the sardonic, satiric "Jim" Reed of Missouri, smiling through his disappointment, faced the convention which had refused him, pledged his support to the ticket and in a characteristic speech denounced Herbert Hoover as "a renegade American," and sarcastically invited the movie magnates to "reinstate Fatty Arbuckle so he could fire Will Hays."

Fight Fizzles Out

He stood there, The silver haired boy Missourian. A loser at 69, but he faced it smilingly and with a plea for harmony. He had bitter words—but they were for Republicans, not Democrats.

The fight over prohibition largely fizzled out in the final analysis. It had been the rock upon which it was predicted the convention would split—if it was to split at all.

In 31 words of the prohibition issue was disposed of. They were these:

"This convention pledges the party and its nominees to an honest effort to enforce the Eighteenth amendment and all other provisions of the federal constitution and all laws enacted pursuant thereto."

The drys were satisfied because it commits Governor Smith to rigid enforcement of the law by name; the wets were satisfied because it does not prevent the governor, in the event of his election, from recommending modification of the law. Such divergent opinions as Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and Senator Carter Glass of Virginia were reconciled on this point and both assured the convention of it.

For Law Enforcement

The Smith people perhaps were better satisfied of the two.

"Governor Smith's views on prohibition are well known," said one of his leaders today. "He is opposed to the present status of prohibition. He has his own platform on this point, irrespective of what the platform declares. Of course, he stands for law enforcement. All public officials do."

They were pleased because they believe the dry Democrats will look at the platform and be satisfied; they were pleased because they believe the wets, both Democratic and Republicans, will look at Governor Smith and vote for him.

The official history won't record it, but when the roll call ended Governor Smith was barely short of the nomination. He had 724 2-3 votes as against the 733 1-3 necessary to nominate.

November To Tell

Ohio, which had cast 47 of her 48 votes for Atlee Pomerene on the first ballot, had an agreement with the Tammany leaders that if Ohio votes were needed at the conclusion of the roll call they would be forthcoming before the result could be announced. Scarcely had big Pat Halligan called and recorded two votes for Smith in the Virgin Islands when Ohio came to the front.

Forty-five of the Buckeye state's 48 votes were switched immediately and this sent Smith across with votes to spare. But the rumor of the band wagon was already rumbling. Half a dozen states, Indiana included, wanted to follow the Ohio example and it took half an hour for them all to get aboard.

Al Smith is in the driver's seat. Where he is going cannot be determined until the first Tuesday after the first Monday of next November.

South America or pushing railroads out to the ends of the earth.

Different Personalities

Hoover by the end of the World war was an international figure, familiar to the people of the worlds' capitals. And Al Smith's star was rapidly reaching its zenith in New York.

And aside from their strangely contrasted careers Smith and Hoover have little in common from the personal standpoint—clothes amusements, sports or other modes of life.

Smith—the man of ready handshake and the slap on the back, always at home in the crowd or on the stump; Hoover—somewhat shy, retiring, but thoroughly "at home" on some problem of relief, reconstruction or administration.

It will be a queer campaign before the rough and ready politician, clever and brilliant personality—Smith and Hoover—the deliberate, quiet Quaker, engineer, economist, scientist and administrator.

MARION MAN TAKES HIS LIFE IN HOME

Chester H. Holland, 36, Shoots Self; Was in Ill Health

Using a 38 caliber revolver, Chester Howard Holland, 36, took his life at 5:15 o'clock this morning in a bedroom at his home, 620 Herman st.

Holland, who had been in ill health for some time, was given to excessive worry, relatives said. It is believed that despondency over his condition and worry were responsible for his act.

Verdict of "suicide by firearms" was given by Marion County Coroner R. D. Osborn, after examining the body this morning.

The bullet entered Holland's head just above the right temple and came out at a point below the left ear. Death was instantaneous.

The body was removed to the W. C. Boyd funeral home, South Main st. No arrangements for the funeral have been made.

Holland had been employed at the Osgood Mfg. Co., as a molder. He was born at Moncalm County Mich., Sept. 12, 1892 and was the son of Lemuel H. Holland, who preceded him in death, and Mrs. Anna Holland Hauver, who survives. His marriage to Miss Clara Schweinfurth took place in this city Dec. 19, 1915. Holland's lodge affiliations were with Lime City Council, No. 276, Junior Order United American Mechanics.

Surviving with the widow are his mother, Mrs. Anna Hauver; two daughters, Misses Violet Marie and Leona Ruth Holland, at home; a sister, Mrs. Charles Henry, 716 Herman st; three brothers, Henry Holland of Waldo and George and James Holland of Chicago, and a half brother, Arthur Holland of Gowen, Mich.

The popularity of these bags is traceable to the charming beauty of their original color effects and exquisite workmanship.

OHIO REPUBLICANS APPROVE PLATFORM

Crosses were delivered by Attorney General Edward C Turner, Columbus; Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, and Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky. U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs due to the lateness of the hour, abandoned his intention of making a brief informal talk. His voice failing him, Cooper was forced to shorten his address.

The convention adopted resolutions registering the sorrow of the Republican party over the death of late U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis and sent telegrams of greeting to President Coolidge, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and U. S. Senator Charles Curtis.

The Hamilton County delegation launched a demonstration, lasting several minutes, for Cooper after he finished his talk. A demonstration for Begg, led by a uniformed Sandusky school band, was staged by thirteen district delegates at the close of Begg's address.

Candidates for presidential electors selected at the Republican state convention here today follow:

Electors-at-large: Mrs. Wilma Sinclair Le Van, Steubenville; Gen. Edward Orton, Jr., Columbus.

First district, George Puchta, Cincinnati; second, William Keehl, Cincinnati; third, E. G. Burkham, Dayton; fourth, Charles W. Herbst, Wapakoneta; fifth, P. C. Prentice, Napoleon; sixth, D. Q. PASTOR IS SPEAKER AT LODGE MEETING

Rev. Frank P. George Addresses Brotherhood of Railway Carmen

Rev. Frank P. George, pastor of Community church, Herman st., was the principal speaker at a largely attended meeting of members of Erie Lodge No. 1008, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America last night at Eagles' temple. Wives of members of the lodge were guests.

Short talks were also given by Louis Mastriana of Newark, N. J., general chairman of the Carmen on the Erie Railroad, and by C. A. Rolin, legislative committeeman and first president of the Marion Central Labor Union. All three talks centered on the subject of labor and labor conditions.

Ralph K. Ruppart, secretary of the Marion Central Labor Union, presided as chairman. Russell P. Patterson, president of the lodge, and Don B. Clark, president of the Marion Central Labor Union, were also speakers.

A social hour and period of music was enjoyed, and lunch served by a committee comprised of Russell Patterson, L. L. Donaugh, Earl Griffith, Robert Elliott and O. E. Collins. Arrangements were in charge of Hayes Maynard, local chairman of the Carmen's Union.

BIRTHS

Announcement was made today of the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Arndt, 407 Oak st., last Wednesday. The baby has been named Jack Loren.

GENERAL CHAIRMEN OF UNIONS TO MEET

A meeting of the 17 general chairmen of the Carmen's Unions of the Erie Railroad will be held in Marion in September, according to announcement made today by Louis Mastriana of Newark, N. J., general chairman.

This light, informal evening dress was introduced by Jean Arthur, screen player. It is of white chiffon with inserts of black lace, the skirt being enhanced by hand pin tucks. White satin opera pumps and pale, nude hose complete the costume.

CALEDONIA NATIVE DIES IN AKRON

Word Received of Death of Mrs. Mae Butin, 45, Sister of Bert Fisher

Word was received here yesterday of the death of Mrs. Mae Butin, 45, sister of Bert Fisher of south of the city, Wednesday night at her home in Akron. Tuberculosis was given as the cause of death.

Mrs. Butin was born May 9, 1885 near Caledonia and was reared in that section. She was formerly Miss Mae Fisher. Surviving are her husband, Carl Butin; four sisters, Mrs. Ella Hoover of Ashland, Mrs. Sylvia Braden of Nankin, Mrs. Reta Heckard of Columbus and Mrs. Belle Wycliff of Galion; three brothers, Bert Fisher of near Marion and John and William Fisher of Cardington.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the M. E. church in Ashland, where burial will take place.

CREW OF STEAMER SAFE AFTER CRASH

Boats Collide Off Cape Cod in Fog; One Is Beached

Chatham, Mass., June 20—The steamship Evangeline, New York to Yarmouth, N. S., with about 100 passengers aboard was in collision in a fog with the freight steamship Grecian, Boston to Baltimore and Norfolk with a crew of 40 officers and men, off Cape Cod today.

With a large hole ripped under her water line, the Grecian was beached safely at Monomoy Point.

The Evangeline stood by until the Grecian reached shore in safety and then proceeded north.

SEARCH IS STARTED FOR OVERDUE AIR MAIL PILOT

St. Louis, June 20—The Robertson Aircraft Corp. today instituted a search for Leslie H. Smith, 25, airmail pilot 12 hours overdue here from Houston, with pictures of the Democratic convention.

Smith left Little Rock, Ark., at 7:40 o'clock last night and was scheduled to arrive here at 10 p. m.

Both parties should remember that they are married for worse as well as better.

If married people continued to act as they did during courtship there would be few divorces.

YOUTH KILLED WHEN AUTO TURNS OVER; MOTHER HURT

Mansfield, June 20—Jack Reavis, 5, is dead and his mother, Mrs. J. A. Reavis, and Mrs. Robert Whitworth, all of St. Louis, are in a hospital here as result of an accident when the automobile in which they were riding turned over on the Ashland-Mansfield-rd. near here late yesterday.

The condition of Mrs. Whitworth was said to be critical, while Mrs. Reavis is thought not seriously injured.

NOMINEE WILL PLAN CAMPAIGN AT MEET

Committee Chairman To Be Named by Governor Smith on Thursday

Houston, Tex., June 20—Nominated for the presidency at one of the most impressive love feasts the Democratic party ever has had, Gov. Al Smith of New York is slated to lay the groundwork for an aggressive campaign at a meeting with 30 members of the national committee at New York City, next Thursday.

Unless there are some unexpected developments, indications were that the New York executive will dictate the selection of Senator Peter Goelet Gerry of Rhode Island, as chairman of the Democratic National committee to succeed Clem Shaver of West Virginia.

LARGE ATTENDANCE EXPECTED AT MEET

Detroit Air Tournament To Get Under Way Saturday

Detroit, Mich., June 20—At least 100,000 persons are expected to watch the two main events of the Detroit air tournament Saturday, the national air tour and the Gordon Bennett International balloon races at Ford airport. Airplanes and balloon pilots were engaged today in last minute preparations and inspections.

Twenty-nine airmen will compete in the national air tour, the fourth contest for the Edsel Ford reliability tour.

It is to cover a 6,300 mile route to the Pacific coast and back. Twelve balloonists, representing eight countries are entered in the Gordon Bennett race.

Boys from all over the United States are engaged in elimination trials at Selfridge field, near Detroit, today in preparing for the finals of the national model airplane contest at Ford airport Saturday.

AMERICAN PRODUCER AND ACTOR CLAIMED

Leo Dietrichstein, Victim of Heart Disease, Dies in Vienna

Vienna, June 20—Leo Dietrichstein, well known American actor and producer, is dead here today at the age of 66. He died suddenly last night in Auersperge sanitorium of heart disease. His body will be cremated tomorrow.

COUNTERFEIT NOTE

Washington, June 20—Warning of the circulation of a counterfeit $20 Federal Reserve note on the New York Federal Reserve bank, was issued today by Chief W. H. Moran of the secret service. Face up the note is fairly deceptive but the back is poorly executed, Moran said.

NO TRACE OF SMITH AFTER TWO MONTHS

Mystery of Disappearance Continues to Baffle County Officials

elective public office vacant, action is necessarily slow.

Apparently little effort is being made to apprehend Smith and return him to the county. The bonding company, the Central Surety Co., of Des Moines, Ia., has been notified that the inspection of Smith's records shows a shortage in his accounts. So far however, the bonding company has not reimbursed the county to the extent of the bond.

One Bond Runs Out

Whether the bonding company is liable for the full amount of the shortage or for only $2,000, the amount of the bond in force when Smith disappeared, is a question on which county officials and state examiners apparently differ. Two bonds, both for $2,000, were written by the surety company to cover Smith's term in office. The first expired on Sept. 7, 1927. The other written at the expiration of the first runs until Jan. 5, 1931, five days after the end of the official's second term.

The inspection however, revealed that when the first bond expired there was a shortage of approximately $1,700. It is claimed by some that this amount is recoverable under the first bond and that the remainder of the shortage is covered by the second bond. Others say however, that the bonding company is at no time liable for more than $2,000. The question in all probability will have to be settled by a court.

Charge Filed in Court

An affidavit filed in Municipal Court charging embezzlement of $2,785.41 is the only charge standing against the official at present. The affidavit was filed by T. W. Jones, state examiner in charge of the inspection of Smith's records. The filing of the affidavit is the extent of his responsibility, he says.

The amount of the embezzlement charge is $125.45 less than the amount of the actual shortage due to the fact that $115.23 of this amount is interest on deferred payments and $10.22 is involved in bookkeeping errors made in recording legal documents.

Whether the bonding company is making any effort to apprehend the missing official is not known here. County officials point out that if any legal action is to be taken against Smith, the bonding company is responsible for finding him. The county, they say, is protected by bonds and its reasons for wanting to prosecute are slighter than those of the bonding company.

Holding Bag

Left holding the bag, appears to be about the position the bonding company is in. To conduct what would probably be a nation wide search for Smith would involve the county in a heavy expenditure, officials say. And with only an affidavit against him the chances are slight that he could be extradited if found in another state, it is claimed.

While Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedeman has made no statement it is likely that Smith's case will be considered by the next session of the grand jury which meets early in September. A special session of the grand jury early in June passed up one chance to consider the case.

SITES FOR AIRPORT DISCUSSED AT MEET

New Plots Offered Committee For Use in Landing Field Plan

Other than a continued discussion of probable sites for a landing field for Marion, little was achieved at a meeting last night of the Junior Chamber of Commerce airport committee and the finance committee of the city council.

The meeting was a continuation of the discussion started last Wednesday when members of the two committees inspected a number of proposed sites for a municipal airport.

Since the inspection tour a number of other sites have been offered for sale or lease by property owners, according to members of the committee. Some of these however, and not adaptable to the purpose due to their distance from the city, it is said. Others are more promising and will likely be given consideration before a final selection is made.

Just when Marion's airport will become a reality is not known. Definite steps to obtain a field may be taken soon, according to members of the Junior Chamber and city council.

At present the chief task of the promoters is to work out some satisfactory means of financing the project, it is said. That the field will be obtained by a lease held by the Junior Chamber and financed by the Marion Civic Association for at least two years was the plain that seemed most probable today.

LICENSE ISSUED

Marriage license was issued in Probate Court today to John Blackburn, 22, steel mill employe, and Mabel Green, 21. Both are Marion residents.

Life is a realistic story which would read like fiction if published.

"There It Is," Smith Says As Radio Brings Word of Change In Ohio Delegation

"My Heart Is Where My Palate Ought To Be," Democratic Candidate Tells Press When Nomination Goes Across on First Ballot

Albany, N. Y., June 29—There it is.

These were the three words that made political history early this morning when Gov. Al Smith, sitting in the blue room of the executive mansion heard the secretary of the Democratic national convention at Houston announce over the radio the switch of Ohio votes that assured him his party nomination for president. It was a typical Al Smith expression, characteristic of that quality of humanity which Franklin D. Roosevelt stressed in his nominating speech at Houston.

Seated in his home before his radio set, surrounded only by his friends, the governor seemed like a boy as the news came, punctuating the radio announcements with puns and Smithesque remarks. Then he was cheered by neighbors and greeted by hundreds who called him "Al" in an amazing demonstration which shattered the early morning quiet of this old Dutch city.

"There it is," said Al Smith, the man. Here is what Alfred E. Smith, governor of New York, presidential candidate of the Democratic party, gave out as his official statement.

"My nomination on the first ballot fills me with joy and satisfaction that I know is shared by my family and friends. My heart is where my palate ought to be."

Crowds Jam Lawns

And he had something else to say, too, this was addressed to a milling, shouting, almost delirious crowd of a thousand men and women who swarmed over the lawns of the executive mansion and crowded up to the very front steps of the home of the New York governor.

The governor took his time about responding, he wasn't going to have any mistake made. He was going to be the nominee of his party certainly and irrevocably before he responded to the cheers of the "neighbors." In fact, he repeated with evident relish, the radical words of the convention chairman, trying to hold the delegations in order as they sought to switch their votes to Smith:

"There is no need for excessive bandwagon rush."

But finally there was no further resisting. He stepped out on the front porch, as the crowd pressed in about him and flares and arcs threw a weird light on the throng, as cameras ground reels for history.

Cheer Candidate

"Al, Al, Al," was the shout from every throat.

Then: "Speech, speech, speech."

A hush fell as he began:

"The returns in the news from Texas indicate that New York state, myself, my family and all my friends are greatly honored by the confidence placed in me by an overwhelming majority of the delegates. Here in Albany, as I am now, surrounded by friends and neighbors, the only thing I can say is what I just told the newspapermen, that I am overwhelmed by the news and my heart is up where my palate ought to be."

Shouts Greet Talk

A wild shout greeted him, as storm pushed forward trying to shake his hand. For several minutes he stood there, then finally:

"I'll bid you all good night. I'll see you tomorrow, the next day and all of the summer."

Characteristic of the man were his comments on the roll call of the states programmed. When it was announced that Alabama had cast one vote for Governor Smith, with the famous "24 votes for Underwood" of the 1924 convention in every one's mind, he grinned and said:

"That's one more than I ever got there before."

THOMPSON FUNERAL WILL BE SATURDAY

Marion Woman Succumbs at Home Here; Rev. Holliday to Officiate

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Klingel Thompson, 68, who died of uremic poisoning at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning at her home, 208 Wallace st., will be held there at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Rev. Earl L. Holliday, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist church, will officiate and burial will be in Marion cemetery.

Mrs. Thompson, the widow of George W. Thompson, was born in Marion county Dec. 29, 1862 and was the daughter of John and Carolina Herman Klingel, who preceded her in death. Mr. Thompson, to whom she had been married Dec. 22, 1881, died 15 years ago. She was a member of the German Reformed church.

Surviving her are two daughters, Mrs. Lydia Gill of Cincinnati and Miss Martha Thompson, at home, a son, Walter Thompson of Cleveland, a sister, Mrs. J. W. Everett of Lima, and a brother, John Klingel of Cleveland.

TENOR ON ETHER PROGRAM

Saturday's Radio Bill

Now that the political conventions are practically a thing of the past for at least another four years, fans may turn their attention to some of the radio music now being broadcast.

During the recent convention nearly every station of importance was linked up with a great network broadcasting the Democratic results.

Lew White, organist, will be heard in a recital that features Saturday night's program of the National Broadcasting System. His program will go on the air at 8 o'clock.

The opening number on recital will be the grand march from "The Queen of Sheba," "The Doll Dance" followed by "Indian Summer" will be the next numbers heard.

"Onward, Christian Soldiers" will be presented by the Whittall Anglo-Persians as a part of their program over the National Broadcasting System at 7:45 o'clock, Sunday night.

Alan McQuhae, famous Irish-American tenor, will be soloist in the Atwater Kent Radio Hour at 8:15 o'clock Sunday night.

As a sequel to their presentation last week,—"The Mess of Potage"—the National Players will present "The Stolen Blessing" over the National Broadcasting system at 9:45 o'clock Sunday night.

JUDGE MARTIN RESERVES DECISION IN RAYLE CASE

Chester Rayle, who, with his brother George Rayle, was arrested several days ago on a non-support charge filed in municipal court by Kathryn Salter, appeared before Municipal Judge Martin yesterday afternoon for hearing. As with his brother George Rayle whose hearing was held following his arrest, the court reserved the decision. The two men were charged with having failed to support their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Rayle since June 1.

Organ To Be Dedicated At Oakland Theater, Saturday

Miss Dorothy Wilson, Columbus, to Begin Services as Chief Organist

MISS DOROTHY WILSON

Miss Dorothy Wilson, Columbus, will begin her services as chief organist of the Oakland theater with the dedication of the new Kilgen organ, Saturday night. The new organ will replace the orchestraphone which has been operated by Miss Wilson.

A new candy store and tea room, located in the room immediately south of the theater will also be opened to the public Saturday night. A small floor for dancing has been constructed in the tea room.

Efforts are being made by R. Maxson, president of the Celina Amusement Co., manager of the Oakland theater and of the new tea room, to establish a community center in connection with the theater and tea room.

The Oakland theater has been running under the direction of the Celina Amusement Co. for the past month. Many high-class feature pictures have been shown at the theater since its opening and many have been announced for future showing.

M'WILLIAMS CLASS MEETS AT CHURCH

Mrs. Jennie Uncapher in Charge of Social Hour at Meeting

Mrs. Jennie Uncapher was in charge of a social hour which followed the program meeting of members of Anna McWilliams class, Trinity Baptist church, yesterday afternoon in the church parlors.

Mrs. David Morral, president, opened the meeting by reading a selection from the Bible. The class repeated in unison the twenty-third psalm and Psalmist's prayer and sang, "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning."

Mrs. Anna McWilliams, teacher of the class, read a paper on the subject, "Honesty," and Mrs. Morral read a paper, "Mrs. King Says." "A Janitress Who Gave Her Church a $12,000 organ" was the title of a selection read by Mrs. D. L. Stouffer. Mrs. J. M. Parshall gave a paper, "The Diamond Necklace," and Miss Dorothy Dergie read a selection, "Anthony Jawelak's Blindness Did Not Dim the Beauty in His Soul." A paper by Mrs. S. D. Elder, entitled "Suicide," brought the program to a close. The next meeting will be held at the church Thursday, July 26.

Charley Noel Will Pitch Against Florida Cuban Giant

MARION, MANSFIELD TO PLAY FIVE-GAME SERIES; TWO SLATED

Famous Colored Team Scheduled for Lincoln Park Sunday

Just to make things more interesting, Charley Noel, Ft. Wayne hurler, will be on the mound Sunday afternoon at Lincoln park when the Marion Eagles take on their second colored team in three weeks.

Noel's curves will be offered as bait to slugging batsmen of the Florida Cuban Giants. He is well known in this section, having pitched with Upper Sandusky several years ago. During that time he won three contests from the Marion team, two of which were shutouts.

With airtight pitching, the Eagles are expected more than an even break with the visitors. Since being scheduled by Marion, the Cuban Giants have been winning games quite regularly. The team is seeking a series with the Homestead Grays to decide the colored championship of the world.

After doing what can be done against the Florida nine, the Eagles will then turn their attention to a five game series with Mansfield. The first game will be played at Lincoln park as the fourth of July attraction. One week from Sunday the local nine will journey to Mansfield for the second game of the series. The dates for the remainder of the games have not been set.

Sunday's preliminary fray will find the Marion Kappas recreation ball nine playing the Columbus fraternity team. This contest will be called at 1:30 o'clock with the Eagles' contest following at 3 o'clock.

It doesn't require much effort to grumble.

CONNIE'S PENNANT HOPES CRUSHED BY YANKEES' VICTORY

Athletics to Concentrate on Warding Off Attack of St. Louis Browns

New York, June 29—Thrashed by the all powerful Yankees again yesterday for the eleventh time in fifteen games with the champions this season, Connie Mack's crushed Athletics today cast aside all thoughts of winning the American League pennant and concentrated on warding off a flank attack by the third place St. Louis Browns. The Mackmen are now twelve games behind the Yanks and only two games ahead of the speeding Brownies, who handed Detroit a 5 to 2 beating yesterday.

George Pipgras chalked up his 14th victory and Babe Ruth walloped his twenty-ninth and thirtieth homers as the Yanks outslugged the A's by a 10 to 4 score.

Ruth is now hitting four-baggers at the rate of 73 for the season.

He is fourteen ahead of Hustor Gehrig and is 20 games, 14 days and six homers ahead of the record pace he set last year.

In the other two feature games of the day the Cardinals beat Pittsburgh, 4 to 3, on homers by Frisch and Hafey, but the Giants kept to the pace by nipping the Phillies, 2 to 1. Joe Genewich, obtained by the Giants from Boston, and Benge each allowed only four hits.

SPECTATORS SQUAWK AS LOUGHRAN WINS

Takes Decision Over Armand Emanuel of California in 10-Round Bout

New York, June 29—Many indignant squawks were broadcast throughout the length and breadth of Madison Square Garden last night following the 10-round encounter between Thomas Loughran, light heavyweight champion of the world, and Armand Emanuel young California barrister. Loughran was not defending his title, as Emanuel came in four ounces over the light heavyweight limit of 175 pounds.

The decision went to Loughran and it was a just award inasmuch as Tommy carried the first five rounds and the seventh. Emanuel's earnest gesticulating in the sixth, eighth, ninth and tenth rounds enthused his partisan following into claiming the fight for him, but by no stretch of imagination could Emanuel be given more than four rounds.

Emanuel's edge in his good rounds was impressive since he captured them by fast aggressive milling that had Loughran floundering.

Up to last night the young lawyer had not lost a decision.

DAYTON SCHOOL BOY DEFEATS CHAMPION IN OHIO GOLF MEET

James Reston Upsets Joe Wells, East Liverpool, in Second Round

Youngstown, June 28—James "Scotty" Reston, 18-year-old Dayton school boy who upset the Ohio state amateur championship matches at the Youngstown Country club course here yesterday by his sensational play when he eliminated Joe Wells, East Liverpool, twice Ohio champion, four up and two to play, today was scheduled to meet Bobby Johnson, Springfield, another youthful player.

Wells, who is said to be one of the best match players in Ohio, could not overcome five birdies made by Reston, although Wells played a steady game.

Other matches on the program for today, the third round of match play, were: John Florio, Columbus, vs. William Deuschle, Columbus; Carmen Bill, Cleveland, vs. Raleigh Lee, Columbus, and Dr. Marty Seymour, Cleveland, vs. Harold Weber, Toledo.

Defeats Vitt

Tony Vitt, Cleveland, was the first contestant to go down in defeat before Young Reston Thursday morning. The game was nip and tuck until the 18th hole was reached when Vitt's short shot gave Scotty the match, 1 up.

SHIPPED TO RACE

Grattan Bars Favored To Win at Windsor

Mansfield, June 29—Following a race at the Ohio Short Ship meeting here, Grattan Bars, the sensational Canadian pacer has been shipped to Windsor, Conn., to fill the first of three $25,000 engagements in the New England Derby scheduled for July 4.

The horse made an auspicious debut on United States soil at Sandusky winning with utmost ease from Myrtle Baxter, 2:02 1-2; Pete Green 2:02, Jakie O'Connor, 2:04 1-4, and Atteo, 2:06, in straight heats. He won the second heat by ten lengths and came the last half in the fast time of 1:01 1-2 coasting through the last eighth. The time of each of his miles was 2:00.

Grattan Bars now rules the favorite for the Windsor event and also the $25,000 American Derby at Kalamazoo, Mich., July 17. He will be driven by the Canadian reinsman, Vic Fleming, in all his races.

Motor cars to the number of 4,000,000 are now manufactured in America every year. Of these only about one-quarter are exported.

Twin Ignition HIGH COMPRESSION MOTOR

12 Spark Plugs [Airplane Type] instead of 6

The new "Twin Ignition" motor, in the new Advanced and Special Nash "400" models, is a truly amazing development in power.

It is a high-compression motor, with two ignition coils, instead of one, two spark plugs per cylinder, instead of one, 360 sparks per second at top speed, instead of 180, to thoroughly and economically burn the highly-compressed gases.

It sets a precedent in motor-performance among all motor cars.

Nash "400" Advanced Six models are now capable of 75 to 80 miles per hour with no effort at all.

Nash "400" Special Six models do 70 to 75 with consummate ease.

Another major advantage of the "Twin Ignition" motor is economy—more power, more speed, less gasoline.

Drive a new Nash "400" and you'll see what Twin-Ignition and high compression have done to give the world a new and finer motor car.

Alexander Greatest of All Big League Pitchers, Braves' Owner Believes

BY FRANK G. MENKE

WHEN [illegible] are trying to determine who was great among the great[illegible]ball, what about Grover [illegible]

[illegible] question was asked by [illegible]rant, owner of the [illegible] bygone years, fan ex[illegible] one of the most [illegible]'s "Who's Who."

[illegible]'s record isn't the [illegible] in the history of the [illegible] whose achievements — [illegible]s are reckoned — are

Never with Good Teams

[illegible] league career began in [illegible] not a single season since then has he been with a really great ball club. It was the Phillies first, then the Cubs and now he is throwing them for the Cardinals. They were good teams at their best but through most of the years Alex was with them they ranged from ordinary to poor.

"If Alex is in his key day, had been with the Giants—had been given the sustained hitting and fielding strength of John McGraw's teams—he undoubtedly would have hung up a mark in the matter of triumphs that would endure for many a season.

"But even as it was Alex established himself as a super-pitcher. He won 30 or more games for three consecutive seasons while pitching for the Phillies. Only once during the seven years with that club did he fail to win 20 or more games. Each season his own pitching record was a mile ahead of the winning record of the team.

Grant extracted a record book.

Great with Phillies

"Take note of what Alex did with the Phillies and remember that only once in the years he was with that club—1915—was he supported by a winning combination. Most of the other years the Phillies, minus real hitters, not as good at fielding and lacking in perfect team play, finished far down."

"Something to think about, isn't it?" asked Grant pointing to Alexander's record from 1911 to 1916 when he was traded. "For seven years Alex pitched for a team that was just a ball club, yet he won 190 games—an average of 27 victories a year, age not an average of less than 13 defeats—and all the time he was only permitting about two earned runs a game, over a span of seven years.

"In 1918 Alex pitched only three games for the Cubs—won two of them—then went to war. Returning in 1919, he won 18 out of 27 and the following season he won 27 out of 41—wonderful work for any pitcher, miracle stuff for Alex because he was working for a team that just wasn't going anywhere in particular that year.

Won 30 in 1923

"In 1923 he won 27 games for the Cubs and in his first full year with the Cardinals—1927—he pitched them into 21 triumphs. So Alex in 16 pitching years (1918 is counted out because he was in the war) has won 20 or more games in nine different seasons and three times he went beyond 30 wins for a single season—something no modern day pitcher really can approach.

"In all of his 16 years Alex never has failed to compile an average of .500 or better. For in 1918, when he worked in only three games he won two for an average of .667.

"His entire major league history shows him allowing less than three earned runs per game.

"He scored more than 300 strikeouts during four of his years, the top mark being 241 in 1915. He worked in 41 games that season which means that he fanned about six men per game.

Many Strikeouts

"From 1911 until 1920 his strikeout average made him the king pin of them all.

"So far as control is concerned—well, in 1915, 1916 and 1917 he worked in 129 games—and dealt out only 172 passes—an average of less than 1½ per game.

"In 1923 when he was 36 years old—a veteran of veterans—he won 22 out of 34 games and issued only 30 bases on balls in those 34 games—less than one free ticket per combat.

"In 1919 he hung up the modern shutout record with 16 whitewashing efforts in 45 games.

20-4 Wins in 16 Years

"His major league exploits from 1911 to 1927 include along 300 victories and 160 defeats—a pitching average of close to .650.

"And when it comes to 'iron man' stuff where will you find the superior to Alexander who, (excluding 1918 when he was in the war) pitched a total of 667 games in 16 full pitching years—an average of better than 39 games per year.

"If Alexander's record doesn't make him a king among pitching kings—well, what is required of a man to achieve that glory?"

LARGE SPEED CARD ON ALTOONA TRACK

Annual Auto Classic, Aug. 18, Has Three Spectacular Events

Altoona, Pa., June 29—The biggest program of championship automobile races ever held on any track of the world has been announced today for the International Speed Sweepstakes set for Saturday, Aug. 18, on the celebrated Altoona speedway. This inaugural annual classic is to consist of three spectacular events.

The main event of the sweepstakes is to be a 200-mile classic, with 18 of the world's greatest drivers to battle for a $20,000 purse. But preceding this race will be two unique shorter events that loom as the most thrilling contests ever staged—two 10-mile duels.

The first of the 10-mile races will be a match between the world's four greatest living race drivers to settle the debate on their individual daring that has been rife since the famous mile-and-a-quarter timber oval was opened on Labor Day, 1923. The second 10-mile clash will see at least 14 renowned pilots in competition.

Championship prize money, as fixed by the contest board of the American Automobile Association, the governing body of racing, will be posted for each of the 10-mile sprints, but the match race between the four noted drivers will be for a rich special purse in addition.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At New York: Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, light heavyweight champion, won decision over Armand Emanuel, San Francisco (10).

Tiger Payne, Australian negro, won from Joe Monte, Boston heavyweight, on foul (6).

Ork Till, Rochester, N. Y., middleweight, drew with Sunny Jim Williams, California negro (10).

CAULIFLOWER KING

This is Herman Kerse, German middleweight, who breezed over to take a few of Uncle Sam's most gifted brawlers. He described himself as a boxer, though his ears would indicate that backstop is a better word. Herman claims to have engaged in 157 fights, winning them all but two. You pronounce his name exactly like it is spelled.

TED CUNNINGHAM TO TAKE PART IN MEET

Drawings for Vernon Heights Tennis Tourney Slated For Tonight

The flashing racket of Ted Cunningham, inter-state Y. M. C. A. tennis champion, is expected to feature the play of the Vernon Heights tennis tournament which opens Saturday afternoon continuing until all matches are played.

Drawings for the tournament will be made tonight when all entries will meet at the Y. M. C. A.

From advance indications the tournament will be one of the largest ever held in Marion. Registration has passed the 30 mark and is expected to reach 40 or more before drawings are made tonight.

At Harkemsack, N. J.: Georgie Ward, Elizabeth, N. J., outpointed Joe Schlocker, Pacific coast welterweight (8).

LOOKS ON BOUT AS UNCERTAINTY

Tunney's Aide Says Heeney Is No March Hare in Speed But Is Faster Than Dempsey: Champion Too "Set" in Fighting Style

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 29—In the midst of the general dialogue as to just what manner of bedoney Tom Heeney happens to be, it is interesting to learn today that Jimmie Bronson, Tunney's companionate aide at the Philadelphia and Chicago fights, looks upon the gripping struggle of July 26 with a somewhat dubious eye.

It perhaps would be untrue to say that Bronson fears the worst for Brother Tunney. For one thing, the good brother wants not men around him who are given to fearing for him, even when justified, and James has no wish to talk himself right out of employment.

What he did say, is that only with a "private fight" with regulation gloves, rounds and officials in the intervening month can Brother Tunney hope to be the man he was the night he first licked Dempsey.

Missed Too Often

Bronson's summing up of the principals takes this course: that Heeney is no March hare in speed but he is faster than Dempsey; and that Tunney missed Dempsey all too often in the early stages of the Chicago fight.

That Tunney, in confining his activities of the last three years to the same opponent, was open to the danger of being too "set" against the style of fighting this opponent employs.

That the fight may have to go 15 rounds and Tunney has not gone beyond 10 since he met Tarpenite and Gibbons in 1923 and 1925 respectively; whereas, Heeney, a distance fighter, if any, has had hard 15 round fights in the last year with Paulino and Delaney and a 12 rounder with Sharkey.

Democrats Promise Enforcement and Farm Aid in Platfor

PROHIBITION PLANK SATISFACTORY TO ALL

Adopted in Virtual Love Feast on Convention Floor at Houston

COOLIDGE IS BLAMED

Attacked for "Failure" to Offer Constructive Program for Farmers

Houston, Tex., June 28 — Democracy's hosts went forth to battle under a platform standard calling for strict enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment, promising agriculture equality with industry and attacking the Republican corruption.

These were the major planks in the 1928 platform which was adopted in a virtual love feast on the convention floor after the prohibition row had been smoothed over in the resolutions committee.

The prohibition declaration, couched in words somewhat similar to those used by the Republicans at Kansas City, said:

"This convention pledges the party and its nominees to an honest effort to enforce the Eighteenth amendment and all other provisions of the federal constitution and all laws enacted pursuant thereto."

Coupled with the pledge was a denunciation of the Republican party in these words:

"The Republican party, for eight years in complete control of the government at Washington, presents the remarkable spectacle of feeling compelled in its national platform to promise obedience to a provision of the federal constitution which it has flagrantly disregarded and to apologize to the country for its failure to enforce laws enacted by the congress of the United States."

Plank "Satisfactory"

Both wet and dry leaders described the plank as satisfactory and friends of Gov. Al Smith, the party nominee, said it would not embarrass the New Yorker's views favoring liberalization of the Volstead act. Senator Glass of Virginia wrote the plank after a more liberal pronouncement had been rejected by the drafting committee. Gov. Dan Moody, the Texas dry leader, said he would support it. Governor Ritchie of Maryland, champion of the wets, approved the declaration of party policy.

Bishop James Cannon of Methodist Episcopal church, south, put his stamp of approval on it. So did Senator Wagner, of New York, spokesman for Governor Smith.

On farm relief the platform promised the farmers an earnest endeavor would be made to solve the problem of distribution of the cost of dealing with crop surpluses over the marketed units of the crop whose producers are benefited by such assistance. Farm leaders said this language embraced the old equalization fee principle of the McNary-Haugen bill, without closing the doors on a new form of relief legislation.

Blame Coolidge

A pledge was made to create a federal farm board to assist the farmers and stock raisers in the marketing of their products as the federal reserve board has done for the banker and business man.

President Coolidge was blamed for the Republicans "failure" to offer a constructive program to restore equality to agriculture.

"While he has had no constructive and adequate program to offer in its stead, he has twice vetoed farm relief legislation and has sought to justify his disapproval of agricultural legislation partly on grounds wholly inconsistent with his acts making industrial monopolies the beneficiaries of government favor", it was declared.

"Deception upon the farmer and stock raiser has been practiced by the Republican party through false and delusive promises for more than 50 years."

The tone of this language served notice the Democrats would make a strong bid for votes in the wheat and corn belts.

Hit "Corruption"

The Democratic attack on the administration was summed up in the plank entitled "Republican corruption."

"Unblushing, the Republican party offers as its record agriculture prostrate, industry depressed, American shipping destroyed, workmen without employment; everywhere disgust and suspicion, and corruption unpunished and unafraid.

"Never in the entire history of the country has there occurred in any given period of time, or indeed, in all time put together ,such a spectacle of sordid corruption and unabashed rascality as that which has characterized the administration of federal affairs under eight blighting years of Republican rule."

The high lights of other planks follow:

Economy and reorganization—"No economy resulted from the Republican party rule."

Favor Tax Cut

Finance and taxation—"We favor a further reduction of the internal taxes of the people."

Tariff—"Duties that will permit effective competition, insure against monopoly and at the same time produce a fair revenue for the support of government."

Mining—"It is the duty of our government to foster this industry and to remove the restrictions that destroy its prosperity."

Foreign Policy—"The Republican administration has no foreign policy, it has drifted without plan. We declare for a constructive foreign policy based on these principles: outlawry of war, freedom from entangling political alliances with foreign nations.

"Interference in the purely internal affairs of Latin-American countries must cease.

"We condemn the Republican administration for lack of statesmanship and efficiency in negotiating the 1921 treaty for the limitation of armaments. In consequence, the race between nations in the building of unlimited weapons of destruction still goes on and the peoples of the world are still threatened with war and burdened with taxation for additional armament."

Favor Deep Waterways

Water power, waterways and flood control—"We favor and will promote deep waterways from the great lakes to the gulf and to the Atlantic ocean. We favor expeditious construction of flood relief works on the Mississippi and Colorado rivers and such reclamation and irrigation projects upon the Colorado river as may be found feasible."

Transportation—"Common carriers, whether by land, water or rail, must be protected in an equal opportunity to compete so that governmental regulations against exorbitant rates and inefficiency will be aided by competition."

Labor—"Labor is not a commodity. Human rights must be safeguarded. Labor should be exempt from the operations of the anti-trust laws. We recognize that legislative and other investigations have shown the existence of grave abuse in the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes."

Veterans—"Generous appropriations, honest management, the removal of vexatious administration delays and sympathetic assistance for the veterans of all wars, is what the Democratic party demands."

Women and children—"We declare for equality of women with political and governmental

Condemn Big Expendi

Immigration—"Laws which migration must be preserv force and effect, but the pro tained in these laws that se lands from wives and pare fant children are inhuman.

Campaign expenditures—"We condemn the improper and extra money in elections as a dan ening the very existence of institutions."

Monopolies and anti-trust—"Honest business, no matter need have no fears of a administration. The Democ will ever oppose illegitimate honest business."

Bay View Wooded Section
Opens Sunday
A Delightful Trip for You
WHAT are your plans for Sunday? If you are free, we certainly recommend a picnic at Bay View to attend the opening of the Wooded Section. Spread your lunch on the soft turf under the mighty forest trees where centuries ago Indian tribes met in council, where the troops camped in 1812. Look over the quiet waters of Sandusky Bay; fill your lungs with sparkling air that seems to go 'way down to your toes; lie on your back and let your eyes roam thru the towering branches into the untroubled blue. Here you will find peace. Here you will find a spot where you can live.
The subdivisions of the Bay View Wooded Section offers the residents of northern Ohio an opportunity to secure a beautiful summer home at unusual prices on unusual terms. The lots are 50 to 80 feet in frontage, very near the water, graded, drained, all heavily wooded, and beautifully turfed like a park.
Bay View Point is an ideal private summer colony, 6 miles west of Sandusky. Fishing, swimming, boating, flying, tennis, and other sports are at your disposal. As you probably know, Bay View Point is the sight of the new two million dollar highway bridge across the bay, now under construction and to be opened this fall.
By all means come to Bay View on Sunday!

Carey Pastor Officiates at Wedding of Miss Charetta Pahl

Carey, June 29—A pretty June wedding took place at Our Lady of Consolation church Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock when Miss Charetta Angela Pahl, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pahl, of west of Carey, became the bride of Wayne L. Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Weaver, of south of Carey. "Ferns and Flowers" were played as a wedding march by Miss Esther Orians, with violin accompaniment by Ralph Brown. They were attended by Miss Henrietta Weaver, sister of the bridegroom, and Edward Pahl, brother of the bride.

Rev. Father David officiated, using the single ring ceremony. The bride was gowned in a white georgette gown and wore a tulle veil with cap effect caught with a band of rhinestones. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and sweet peas. The bridesmaid wore a gown of honeydew georgette with cream lace trimmings.

After the ceremony a dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents to 75 guests. The dining room was a bower of beauty and the decorations were in pink and white with streamers extending from a large white bell extending to the place cards. A bouquet of white roses and a large wedding cake were the decorations of the bride's table. Assisting at the dinner were Mrs. Paul Krupp, Mrs. Charles Miller, Mrs. Leo Courtad, Mrs. Josephine Hafered, Mrs. John Schmitz, Miss Irene Jacoby, of Fostoria, Miss Gertrude Lonsway, Miss Agnes Arnold and Miss Catherine Miller. Among the guests were Rev. Father Fish, Rev. Father David and relatives from Cleveland, Fostoria, Marion, Upper Sandusky, Findlay and Carey. The couple left in the afternoon on a motor trip in the east, the bride traveling in a rose colored costume.

PARALYSIS FATAL

Rites for York Center Resident To Be Conducted Friday

Marysville, June 29—Mrs. Lutetia Cox, 73, a resident of York Center, died at her home Wednesday night, following a six-weeks' illness of paralysis. She suffered a stroke about a month ago, and had been in a serious condition since.

She was born in Madison County on Apr. 12, 1855, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stone. She was married to Courtney Cox and they were the parents of the following children: Mrs. Ethel Powell, of near West Mansfield; Mrs. Harry Amrine, of York Township; and Mrs. Louis Engle of Broadway. One son and a daughter are deceased.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at the U. B. church at York with interment in Raymond cemetery.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS TO MEET FOR WRECK PROBE

Bucyrus, June 28 — Officials of the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad will meet today instead of yesterday as formerly scheduled for the purpose of investigating and fixing responsibility for the wreck which caused derailment of eight cars and the escape of what might have been a rail catastrophe. The wreck occurred Wednesday afternoon when an engine was shoving 27 cars through the large "Y" and switching cars from one track to the other.

DOG WARDENS NAME PAULDING FOR MEET

Choose Last Thursday in June for Time of Next Gathering

Kenton, June 29—Paulding was selected as the July meeting place of the county dog wardens of Northwestern Ohio, at the closing session of the one-day gathering here yesterday. The meeting will be held the last Thursday in July.

The program here was presided over by Sam Leonard of Wood County, district president. Principal addresses were delivered by County Commissioner Peter M. Duff and P. C. Lingrel, Hardin County auditor.

The greater part of the round table discussion was given over to the ways and means of establishing uniformity in enforcing state laws coming under the supervision of the dog wardens.

SELL STOCK

Cleveland Concern Buys Kenton Home Store at Receiver's Sale

Kenton, June 29—Stock of the Home Store located on the east side of the square, was sold at receiver's sale to the Sixth City Merchandise Company of Cleveland for $4,450. Loucks B. Brown, Hardin County prosecutor, was the receiver for the store.

The total appraised value of the stock and fixtures was about $5,500. The selling price was $4,300 for the stock and $150 for the fixtures. All of the fixtures were not sold.

The bankrupt selected $500 worth of the goods as exemption.

County Prosecutor Loucks Brown has gone to Toledo to have the sale confirmed by the federal court.

TO START WORK

Construction of New Buildings Will Begin Next Week

Mt. Gilead, June 29—Construction on a new Cities Service filling station will probably begin the first of the week, when the present owner of the lot and station, L. E. Jackson, moves his property. The lot is situated at the intersection of West Union and North Main-sts, where state routes 61 and 42 join.

The present plans specify rebuilding the house, moving it back of the station, and the building of an inn, of Spanish type of construction. The station garage will also be built on this plan. The station will be fully lighted at all times. A fireplace will be built in one end of the station, and porches will be built around the station and inn. The lot dimensions are 80 by 140 feet, insuring a spacious and beautiful station. Officials of the Cities Service Company claim that this station will be one of the most beautiful and novel stations in Central Ohio.

OHIO'S SCENIC SPOTS BECKON TO TOURISTS

Many Vacation Points Within Easy Reach of Marion Motorists

As the vacation season gets well under way Ohio's numerous spots of scenic and historic interest beckon to motorists, tourists and vacationers.

That one can spend an enjoyable vacation by "seeing Ohio first" is evident after spending a half hour studying literature put out by the numerous Ohio vacation playgrounds.

Whether one wants rest and seclusion or fishing, boating and the other outdoor sports which are usually associated with vacations, they are to be found at any of the resorts near Marion.

Within Easy Reach

Within easy reach of Marion are vacation spots where one can spend a day or a week in pleasant forgetfulness.

For those who have a week or more to idle away, Indian lake, Buckeye lake, or Rye Beach on Lake Erie offer splendid accommodations and conveniences. Other places that might be listed with these three, though they are less popular with Marion residents, are the Portage lakes near Akron, Chippewa lake near Medina, and St. Mary's lake at Celina.

For one day trips over the week-end or over the Fourth of July, Zane Caverns in Logan county, offer exceptional possibilities.

Vacation Land

From Rye Beach, the vacation land of many Marion persons, one is within easy reach of Put-in-Bay, Cedar Point, Lakeside, and Pelee Island. The best motor route to Rye Beach from Marion is state highway No. 4 through Bucyrus and Sandusky. The resort is five miles east of Sandusky.

To Indian lake the best state highway route is No. 30 out of Marion to Kenton, route 67 out of Kenton to route 69, then south on 69 to Roundhead and the lake.

Buckeye Lake, situated about half way between Columbus and Zanesville, is on the National Highway, route 40

Ritzy Rosalie

For these ardent followers of sport fads this English novelty should prove interesting. Rosalie found this sweater set a smart addition to her sport wardrobe. The colored border effects carry out club colors. Such a combination should be a real inspiration to Rosalie's efforts to learn to play tennis.

FARM RELIEF HEADS PREPARE FOR BATTLE

Meetings in Corn Belt to Rally Three Million Votes For Democrats

Houston, Tex., June 29—Leaders of the "on to Houston" movement for farm relief left for their homes today declaring that a new alliance between the New York "east side" and the "corn belt" would be carried out in full.

Preparing to assume the offensive in the presidential campaign, the farm chieftains had plans already under way for a meeting to begin mobilization of their forces.

Having promised the Democratic party three million farmer votes in hearings before the resolutions committee, the leaders of the "farm revolt" declared that they would perfect an organization in every agricultural state to make good the promise.

A tentative call for a meeting of the corn belt conference in Des Moines, Ia., on July 12 is already out, according to Thomas E. Cashman of Minnesota, chairman of the Minnesota Council of Agriculture and a leader in the fight here.

TRAVELERS MAY BE LINKED WITH GROUP

Better Distribution Methods Aim of Commercial Organization

Columbus, June 29—A movement to link up with National Wholesalers' and Manufacturers' associations for the promotion of better distribution methods was under way here today as the result of a resolution passed by the supreme council of the United Commercial Travelers at the closing of the annual meeting here yesterday.

The resolution provides that the supreme executive committee, composed of Warren S. Trace, Zanesville, chairman; C. A. Johnson, Cleveland, and Walter S. Arndt, Dayton, will have full charge of the movement. Application for membership in the National Chamber of Commerce is to be made, in connection with the move.

George M. Peterson, Duluth, Minn., was elected supreme sentinel at the meeting yesterday. According to the method of choosing the national officers of the order this is the first step toward the office of the supreme counselor. M. J. Martin, Houston, Texas, who was inducted as supreme counselor, appointed William S. Rau, Houston, as supreme chaplain.

WILL HE EXCHANGE THIS MANSION FOR WHITE HOUSE?

With its turret, tower and clinging vines, the gubernatorial mansion at Albany is one of the beauties of the state capital, yet Gov. Alfred E. Smith (right) is quite prepared to leave it for the White House in Washington in event he goes on to defeat Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee, at the polls in November. Above at left is Mrs. Katherine Smith, the governor's mother; below, Mrs. Smith, his wife.

FIGHTING JIM REED CALLS ON DEMOCRATS

Missouri Senator Declares He Never Scratched Name of Nominee

tantly. The delegates remembered that this ought to be the last call to arms from Reed of Missouri and sat it out with roars of applause.

"If there is half as much activity in the Democratic party in November as there is on the floor now, the ticket selected by this convention is elected." Reed is 60, but his terminology is that sharp, gripping, lashing language of eager young men serious in the business of conquering an inexorable world.

"I call upon every Democrat in the United States—" and now comes that smashing apoplectic gesture which brings the listener forward in his hot chair—"I call upon every Democrat in the United States, until the last ballot is counted on the night of the election, to support the nominee of this convention, and by such support to give protection against what I regard as the greatest menace to free government in my life time.

Must March Forward

"In our great councils here we have reached a decision, and the thing for the Democratic party to do is to 'right dress,' forward march—and continue to march until the Republican party is driven from power. Its power is horrible, skillful and unscrupulous.

"Every difference we have within the party sinks into insignificance beside the differences of our party and the Republican party."

And now you have a convention which has been whooping regularly since 10 a. m., lashed into a new maelstrom by the lone wolf who never did climb on the Smith band wagon.

Reed called the roll of the sins of the Republican party from Grant to Coolidge, and then turned his hot lash upon Herbert Hoover.

"I fear for the destiny of our great country should a man of this background be elected to the presidency. If this country is to elect an Englishman to the presidency, I should prefer a thoroughbred Englishman from London rather than a renegade American."

Denounces Coolidge

And that, you may be sure, is a large whoop in a Democratic convention which has just nominated the fellow who began in Fulton Fish Market.

He denounced President Coolidge and all his cabinet in a blanket indictment charging indifference to the Teapot Dome revelations.

"They were as mum as a bunch of Boston oysters decaying on the beach in the month of August. When Grant discovered graft he said, 'Let none of the guilty escape.' Has anybody heard anything like that from Coolidge? Or from Mr. Hoover?"

He excoriated Secretary of the Treasury Mellon for formulating tax policies "which saved his own corporations nine millions of the 90 millions saved to the country" in the first Mellon tax reduction bill after the inauguration of President Harding.

Reverting to the Liberty bond transactions of the famous Continental Trading Co., part of which were contributed by Harry F. Sinclair to the Republican campaign defict from 1920, Reed got around in a few sentences to the suggestion:

"I move that the movie industry be required to reinstate Fatty Arbuckle and require him to fire Will Hays."

Back to Kansas City

Call it a swan song if you will, Jim Reed retires from the senate next March after 51 years of political life. He is going back to Kansas City to become a private citizen—to have, as he once told a colleague in the senate cloakroom, a whirlwind front porch campaign all of his own.

But if you saw Jim Reed under the Sam Houston kleig, you would call it a battle cry, for Reed himself said so with a convincing smash of his open hand upon the speaker's table.

"I am standing today exactly where I stood then—when I was 18 years of age and entered my first campaign. I have never forsaken a great principle of the Democratic party."

Drink Hot Water To End Indigestion

INSTANT RELIEF

Thousands of unfortunate people suffer almost daily from stomach acidity, gas, sourness and indigestion after eating. If they would start the agreeable practice of taking a glass of hot water containing a teaspoonful or four tablets of pure Bisurated Magnesia, they would soon find their stomach so strengthened and improved that they could eat the richest and most satisfying meals without the least symptom of indigestion.

Nearly all digestive troubles are caused by an excess of acid and an insufficient blood supply in the stomach. Food ferments and sours before digestion can take place. A glass of hot water draws the blood to the stomach and Bisurated Magnesia neutralizes the stomach acids and keeps the stomach strong, sweet and healthy and promotes normal painless digestion. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, easy and pleasant to take, and can be obtained from any well stocked druggist in either powder or tablet form. Try this today and enjoy your meals in peace.—Adv.

160,000 ACRES OF COTTON

"WHAT OF IT?... Supposing Dunlop does require all the cotton from 160,000 acres. What does that mean to my pocketbook?"

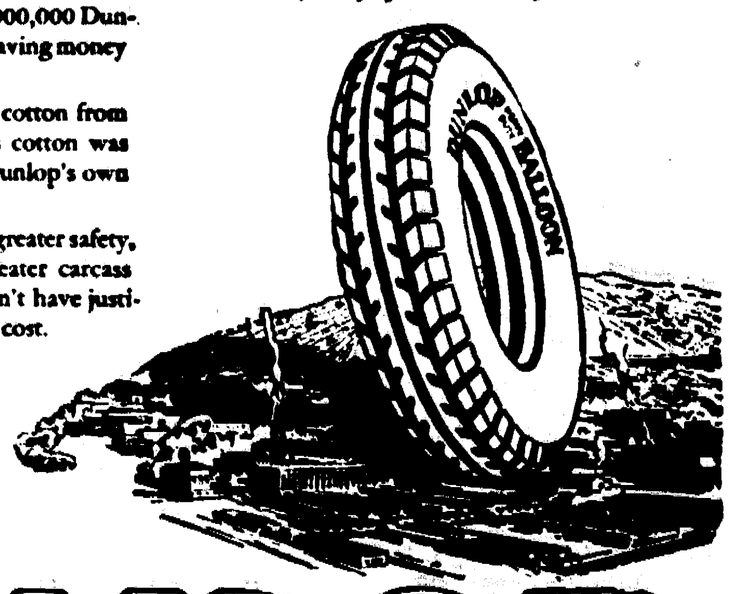
Just this. Dunlop has grown great because Dunlops save money. Over 26,000,000 Dunlops are now in use—each one saving money for its owner.

Last year, Dunlop required the cotton from 160,000 acres, and all of this cotton was spun into cable-twist cord at Dunlop's own cotton mills.

Dunlops are better tires—with greater safety, greater tread mileage, and greater carcass strength. Otherwise they couldn't have justified their slightly higher initial cost.

Yes....the 26 million Dunlops now in use are your guarantee that Dunlop must build only the best.

Save money—equip with Dunlops!



"DUNLOP CITY"

Throughout the world, the productive Dunlop Properties cover so vast an area that—if combined into one place—they would form a "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres.

ICE

on the hottest day

if your electric refrigerator is a Frigidaire

Every electric refrigerator has trays for making ice cubes. But don't take ice-making capacity for granted. Be sure the electric refrigerator you select will actually freeze ice...plenty of ice...quickly and regardless of outside temperatures.

Ask these three questions of the man who tries to sell you an electric refrigerator. Will it freeze ice between meals? Will it freeze ice on the hottest days? Will it give you frozen desserts in summer? Frigidaire freezes ice...between meals... always ... and it gives you frozen desserts in summer.

For there's surplus power in Frigidaire to meet every emergency to provide every refrigerating need.

Small Down Payment

Point by point compare Frigidaire value. Then compare Frigidaire's low prices. Place your order now and have Frigidaire in your home at once. Any model can be bought for a small down payment and the balance on easy terms.

-o- The New Book -o-

By FRANCES JENNINGS

ALTHOUGH known to the dramatic world since 1914, fame really came for Eugene O'Neill this year with the award of the Pulitzer prize for the most distinguished play of the season 1927-28. His latest contribution to American literature—"Strange Interlude," is an emotional drama in nine acts, a beautifully written piece already ranking with the world's outstanding stage productions.

The play presents the emotional life of a woman in her relationship to five men—her lover, husband, friend, son, and father. Shaken by the death of her youthful lover she is a fitting subject for the dramatic crises by which she learns to "pass beyond all desire."

Loved by one possessed of another and cherishing a burning secret which to disclose would mean her lover's ruin, her husband's greatest disappointment, she passes from an emotional life which has threatened to be her undoing—into peace—a peace which comes from understanding and the knowledge of life and love that is the heritage of age.

While "Strange Interlude" is his greatest piece Mr. O'Neill is also remembered for numerous other plays among which are "Lazarus Laughed," the story of Lazarus, aroused by Christ from the dead; "Marco Millions," his first long play; "The Great God Brown," a tragedy of love; "The Fountain," a full-length drama, "Beyond the Horizon," for which he was awarded the Pulitzer prize in 1920, "The Straw" and numerous others.

Mr. O'Neill, at 36 years of age, has already been called "the greatest dramatist now writing in the English language." He is a native of New York.

TWENTY-FOUR NEW BOOKS AT LIBRARY

Twenty-four new books have just been placed in circulation at City Library. The list includes nine pieces of fiction and 15 books for the juvenile shelves.

The new fiction list contains "Behind That Curtain," Biggers; "The Poor Gentleman," Beith; "The Bellamy Trial," Hart; "Ginger Ella," Hueston; "She Walks in Beauty," Powell; "Daughters of India," Wilson; "Dejuge," Wright; "When West Was West," Winter; and "Pilgrims of the Impossible," Dawson.

New juveniles are "Keineth," "Martha the Seventh," and "Boy Mechanic, Vol. 1-2," Abbott; "S. W. F. Club," Jacobs; "Dorothea's Double," Johnson; "The Story of Dr. Dolittle," "Dr. Dolittle's Garden," "Dr. Dolittle's Post Office," and "Dr. Dolittle's Zoo," Lofting; "Cruise of the Dazzler," London; "Raquel of the Ranch Country," Malkus; "Kingdom of the Winding Road," Meigs; "Bibi: A Little Danish Girl," Michaelis; "The Allens and Aunt Hannah," Pierson; and "White Swallow," Sterne.

MASTERS TURNS OUT HIS NEWEST POEM

The importance of a new work from the pen of Edgar Lee Masters can be gauged only by recalling the furor that arose when his "Spoon River Anthology" was published. The dust of that controversy has settled and "Spoon River Anthology" has emerged with the rank of an American masterpiece and as the forerunner of a whole school of American writers.

The appearance of Mr. Masters' newest work, "Jack Kelso," is likewise an event. In a long dramatic poem Masters has told the story of Jack Kelso—a narrative that is much more than the story of a man's private life.

To history, Kelso is known as the companion of Lincoln during the early days in New Salem, and as the friend who taught him to enjoy Shakespeare and Robert Burns.

In the pages of this poem, Mr. Masters has created the figure of Kelso as a poet and wanderer with the dimensions of a universal character. He is witness to the pageant of American history from 1831 to the present time.

The drift of American life is revealed, the changing and bewildered character of the American people is shown, the whole being pointed with humor, satire and with crucial analysis.

"THE OLD AND YOUNG" THIS MONTH'S BOOK

The Dutton Book-of-the-Month for June, "The Old and the Young," by Luigi Pirandello, is a novel of intrigue in Sicily using the men of two generations—Garibaldian warriors of the older age and fugitive socialists of the new. The influence of women in a subtle by-play to its tragedy. Pirandello is also the author of "Shoot!"

RALPH STRAUS GIVES LIFE OF DICKENS

The life of Charles Dickens is as fascinating a tale as any he ever wrote—and it is presented in a true perspective by Ralph Straus, who chose his material for "Charles Dickens," a biography, entirely from new sources. The sharp contrasts of Dickens' life—poverty and riches, pathos and humor—the overtones of romance and the buzz of scandalous gossip—are thrown in clear relief against the background of the man and his times. Publication will be in September.

GERMAN WRITES ABOUT LEWIS

Sinclair Lewis has had a whole book written about him in Germany. It is a biographical and critical study of 217 pages by Hans Kries. It takes Mr. Lewis through childhood and youth, the university years at Yale, shows how he joined in the struggle between freedom and authority how he went through the school of life, how the revolutionary turned satirist, and then examines the novels, one by one, from "One Mr. Wrenn" to "Elmer Gantry."

Lewis' novels have been published in no fewer that 11 countries—America, England, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Holland, France, Sweden, Denmark, Norway and Czecho Slovakia.

Let Konjola Build You Up!

World's Champion Coffee Drinker Says This New Medicine Brings Life Energy to His Whole Body.

NOT a paid endorsement

"To the makers of Konjola:—

My system consumes a vast amount of caffeine, contained in coffee, so at least four weeks of each year I have selected Konjola to rebuild my system. This remarkable remedy was a great assistance to me in establishing the world's record of 280 eight-ounce cups of coffee in four and one-half hours, and 80 cups in one hour. I held this unique title in 1926 and 1927. In the first five months of 1928 I consumed 8,665 cups of coffee.

I am strongly recommending Konjola because this medicine brings life energy to my whole body. I have toured the world and frankly admit that one of the greatest reasons I can continue in my profession is due to the benefits derived from Konjola."

(Signed) Albert A. Baker,
(World's Champion Coffee Drinker)
1227 Prospect Ave.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Konjola concains juices from twenty-two plants and herbs. It builds the inner-system and invigorates the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to better activity. It produces new feelings of health over your body in general. Your nerves become stronger. Back pains disappear. Constipation vanishes. Your skin clears up and you will notice a keen appetite and enjoy deep, restful sleep. Konjola was first introduced a few years ago and this new medicine has already received testimonials from 7,000 American people—NOT one of them a paid indorsement.

FORMER MARION MAN ACCEPTS PASTORATE

Rev. Robert L. Stubbs Takes Position at Whitefish Bay Community Church

The Rev. Robert L. Stubbs of Evanston, Ill., a former Marion man, has accepted the position as pastor of the Whitefish Bay Community Church at Whitefish Bay, Wis., according to word received by his grandmother, Mrs. Clara Zachman, 212 South Prospect.

Rev. Mr. Stubbs, who at 29 years of age is the youngest full time pastor to serve at Whitefish Bay. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stubbs of Lima, O., former Marion residents. He will make his home at Whitefish Bay assuming his pastorate there Aug. 1 and preaching his first sermon Sept. 3.

With the degree of bachelor of Divinity Mr. Stubbs graduated from Garrett Theological seminary at Evanston June 6. He was active in student activities at that institution, serving as president of the student body and senior class and as the last two years as captain of the basketball team.

While attending the Methodist Seminary he held a pastorate in Savoy, Ill., for two years and last year served as director of religious education for the First Congregational Church at Waukegan.

In 1922 Mr. Stubbs received the degree of bachelor of arts at Oberlin College, Oberlin, and three years later took his master of arts degree at the same institution. During the year 1923-24 he served as a science teacher in Honolulu, Hawaii. He is a member of the American Chemical Society.

FORMER MARIONITE IS HORTICULTURIST

Lewis Beaver Becoming Widely Known as Flower Grower in Toledo

Lewis Beaver, formerly of this city, and son-in-law of T. J. Woodcock, 552 Parsons ave., is becoming widely known in horticulture circles in Toledo.

Mr. Beaver, who at one time was not interested in flowers, helped his wife, formerly Miss Agnes Woodcock, in the transplating of roots from her home in this city to their home in Toledo and became so interested in watching the growth and development of these plants under careful attention, that he began a study of flowers, centering his studies on roses, lilies and tulips.

When 14 years of age, young Beaver joined the United States navy and served his four-year term in learning the trade of coppersmith. At the beginning of the World War he enlisted in the 83rd division and served 17 months overseas with the infantry.

Upon his return to Toledo he found employment as a machinist and is at present in the employ of the Chevrolet Co.

During the tulip season the Beaver yard is a glorious blaze of color, radiated from 2,000 tulip bulbs then in the yard. At present the yard is given over to hundreds of the most beautiful of the hardy species of roses.

There are 150 rose bushes in his garden, representing 65 different varieties. During the winter, when his garden does not prove so absorbing, there are always the books on horticulture, or other studies to take the time after working hours.

The goldfish is a domesticated variety of Chinese carp.

URGE CLUB MEMBERS TO BUILD OWN HOMES

Mrs. Marion Teal and J. W. Paddock Speak at Kiwanis Luncheon

Build your own home of certified lumber according to the 15 principals laid down by the construction engineers of the lumber manfacturing companies. This was the substance of talks made by Mrs. Marion Teal, and J. W. Paddock, at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis club held at the Hotel Harding yesterday.

Build your own home and build it according to your own ideas, was Mrs. Teal's suggestion to members of the club and their wives, who were guests at the luncheon. America should strive to develop individualism as an escape from the standardizing which now governs much of its manufacturing even in the building of homes, Mrs. Teal said, she also complimented the city on the large amount of building, saying that it showed the progressive spirit necessary to a city's growth.

The coming of a time when builders will demand certified lumber and a certificate of construction, with their homes, was predicted by Mr. Paddock. Prospective builders demand a clear deed to their land before they build, yet the land as a rule represents but 20 per cent of the cost of a home, it was pointed out by the speaker.

Approximately $100,000,000 is being spent each year in the building of homes in which the buyer has not the slightest knowledge of how the house is built or the kind of lumber used.

A house properly contructed according to the 15 principals laid down by the construction engineers, will withstand a wind of tornado velocity, the speaker declared.

CLUB WILL SAIL

Ohio Wesleyan Singers Slated for Five Concerts Abroad

Delaware, June 29—The Ohio Wesleyan Singers Club, which will sail from Montreal abroad the S. S. Letitia for Liverpool, Friday, June 29 on a six-weeks' European tour, has a tentative series of five concert appearances abroad. According to present arrangements, the club will sing twice in Paris, and once in Brussels, Geneva, and Leamington Spa, fashionable English watering place.

Dr. Russell B. Miller, Ohio Wesleyan librarian, is in charge of the tour and the club will be directed in its appearances abroad by Harrison D. LeBaron, director of the Ohio Wesleyan School of Music.

Nearly 20 friends and alumni of Ohio Wesleyan will make the tour with the club so that the entire Ohio Wesleyan party will exceed forty persons. They will return to New York, August 5.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Black raspberries made their first appearance of the season today and dealers were asking 25 cents a pint for a variety of exceptionally good quality. The supply was limited and a ready sale was reported. Red raspberries are still in the luxury class, a few were on the market today, selling at $1 a quart. Blackberries continue inails plentiful and were selling today at 20 and 22 cents a quart. Home grown strawberries, dealers were predicting today, will be off of the market by next week. The unusually wet season is being given as the reason for the light crop. Berries, they say, are rotting on the vines before they are ripe enough to pick. Home grown berries will be replaced, in a limited supply, at least, by berries from the south

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 29—Grains closed irregularly on the Board of Trade yesterday. Wheat was erratic in a rather light trade. Commission houses were on both sides of the market, with scattered persistent selling of July in small lots, which sent that delivery to a wider discount under the September future. There was some selling credited to the Northwest and Southwest. Locals and other commission houses bid prices up at times, but every upturn ran into increased selling. Favorable crop advices from the Northwest and weakness in foreign markets were offset by continued rains in the Southwest and the forecast for unsettled conditions. Harvesting is being delayed in Kansas to some extent, but movement of new wheat in

SAYS DOG INJURIES DUE TO NEGLIGENCE

William R. Yocom Files Answer to Suit Brought by Wilber C. Kingsley

Setting up a general denial that he was responsible for the actions of his dog, and that the injuries sustained by the plaintiff were due to his own carelessness, William R. Yocom, defendant in a damage suit brought in municipal court by Wilber C. Kingsley for injuries he says he received when bitten by a dog belonging to Yocom, has filed an answer in municipal court through his attorney, L. E. Myers.

Kingsley filed a petition in municipal court two weeks ago through his attorneys Wiedemann and Patten asking $262 damages for wounds he declares he received in his right hand and shoulder when he was attacked by a dog belonging to Yocom. The dog bit him when he appeared at the rear door of the Yocom home seeking a job of hauling away a quantity of rubbish, he avers.

Yocom in his answer admits ownership of the dog but charges that the animal was secured by a leash to a dog house and while the dog was not cross, he had erected several signs in the yard at his home bearing the words "cross dog." He also declares in his answer that the gate was fastened by a hasp and that Kingsley coming to the rear door, aroused the suspicions of the dog. he alleges Kingsley's injuries were the result of his own carelessness.

Attorneys for the plaintiff declare that under the laws, the owner of a dog is responsible for any injures inflicted by the animal, even though the dog is confined to the owner's yard or home. Kingsley charged that as the result of the injuries he was unable to work for three weeks and also had acquired a doctor bill.

ANNIVERSARY BELLS RING FOR 18 COUPLES

Observances of Weddings 25 Years Ago Slated for July

Silver wedding bells will ring for 18 couples in July if nothing has happened to cause their separation since they obtained their marriage licenses in Marion county probate court 25 years ago.

That combined honeymoons and Fourth of July celebrations were popular a quarter of a century ago is indicated by the fact that on only one other day were there as many licenses issued as on July 3. July 13, in spite of superstitions, ranked with July 3 in number of licenses issued. Four were issued on each of the two days.

Here follows a list of Marion county brides and bridegrooms of 25 years ago next month and the dates on which their license were obtained:

Daniel F. Hurlaugh and Mary Ellen Baker, July 2; Michael Trim and Rose E. Carey, July 3; James E. Watson and Retta M. Watson, July 3; Walter S. Cluff and Mary E. Court, July 3; Harry A. Young and Eliza J. Richert, July 3.

Roy Black and Bertha Tombs, July 6; Loyal W. Brattain and Emma E. Fetter, July 7; Elmer O. Francoeur and Mary J. Robinson, July 7; William Preston Hemrick and Mertn May Boger, July 9; John K. Schwinger and Georgia McGovern, July 13; Martin Dewson and Elizabeth Winslow, July 13.

William H. Grant and Anna L. Day, July 13; Chelcie W. Davis and Kate Prettyman, July 13; LeRoy Lindsay and Laura Roush, July 23; Christian A. Roth and Eva O. Sponsler, July 26; M. Pierce Conner and Mary Gilmore, July 26; Albert Langston and Amelia Hartman, July 27; and Fred Coffer and Maude Manley, July 27.

Daily Proverb—"The merit of success is claimed by all; calamity is imputed to the general only."

And to think that while Houston is sweltering in the heat, we up here in this garden spot of the world are enjoying furnace fires and sleeping under blankets!

Mary Buckley says that keeping husbands in hot water constantly does not make them tender. We don't know Mary, but she certainly has demonstrated that she's a close student of the matrimonial game.

In the light of the fist fights pulled off in the Houston gathering, it's beginning to dawn upon us why the management secured Tex Rickard to look after the seating.

"It was a distinct and powerful argument in favor of an elected judiciary," says the Columbus Dispatch, "that none of the judges who are to face the electorate this year voted Remus his freedom." It might have been an argument, if it were true.

From Italy comes word that Vesuvius is again active. We'll say this for Vesuvius; it's mighty considerate of her to hold off her stunt each year till the tourist season is on.

The fight between Mayor Bill Thompson, of Chicago, and the sinister influences of King George goes on, and in this connection an apartment building in course of construction up there is to be called "Windsor Castle."

Canada's mineral output last year was worth approximately $245,000,000, which should occasion some surprise on the part of those who have been assuming that her output was wholly liquid.

Ganna Walska has purchased the Theater Champs Elysees in Paris. Ganna may never startle the world with the quality of her notes, but she certainly is some picker when it comes to the selection of a theater. She now has the most pleasing and comfortable one in all France.

An accounting of the very considerable estate of the late famous woman rifle shot, Annie Oakley, reveals that she never lost on any of her investments. It will be interesting to the newspapers that made her rich by paying her damages for libel to know that she didn't burn up their money.

An Old Acquaintance.

While it has not been our practice to pay pay special attention in these columns to keynote addresses, we feel that it would hardly be becoming to pass without notice an old acquaintance coming back to us after an absence of thirty or forty years.

It is true that the old keynote was somewhat more picturesquely garbed by Mr. Claude G. Bowers, of New York, when he resurrected it for use down in Houston, a few nights since, than it ever was in the zenith of its popularity, but in all essential details it was the same old keynote. True, in years agone Mr. Bowers was not on the scene to give it the subtle brilliancy it possessed this week. We can not recall anything to equal his "Privilege and Pillage are the Gold Dust twins of normalcy," or his reference to the "Black Horse cavalry of Privilege and Pillage" charging down Pennsylvania avenue, and the idea of building "a temple of gold on the bowed backs of peasant in other people's fields" is all Mr. Bowers' own, and we'll say that it's a mighty poor one at that, for the reason that he would have to go abroad to get his foundation, and by the time he got his peasants over here they would be demanding more pay and be striking if they didn't get it.

Confessedly, Mr. Bowers' keynote probably was adequate for stirring up the enthusiasm of the delegates, but, seriously considered, it will be found to be woefully lacking in merit as an argument for the switching of the reins of government from the Republican to the Democratic party; it will be found to be nothing but a long array of words, words, words, in alliterative attack and invective. It was given in large part to an arraignment of the Republican party for party scandals of five years ago, and utterly ignored the present party scandals in the state of the leading candidate before the convention. From first to last, it lacked a constructive thought, and it did not offer a single remedy for the alleged evils of which it complained, other than that the government be turned over to Democracy.

And here Mr. Bowers was responsible for a humorous situation. His suggestion that graft in office be prevented by turning Republicans out and putting Democrats in was rapturously cheered by a convention dominated by Tammany Hall, which today is the target of graft charges. What could be more humorous than the idea of preventing graft in office by placing Tammany Hall in control in Washington—Tammany Hall with a reputation for grafting so old that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary? It's funny enough to draw laughter even from our editorial friends of Democracy.

A Misfortune of Politics.

Only a few driven out of Nicaragua as revolutionists and a few bandits are opposed to the American policy in that country, was the statement made to dock reporters, Monday, by Dr. David Preston Barrows on his arrival in New York from South America. "The United States marines have done a magnificent task," he continued, "one of the finest examples of international police work I have ever seen."

Dr. Barrows, who formerly was president of the University of Chicago and now represents the Carnegie endowment for international peace in the capacity of visiting professor of international relations, has been lecturing at some of the chief universities of South America and on his way homeward visited Central America, giving his chief concern to the study of conditions in Nicaragua and the feeling of the Nicaraguan people.

Having made a study of peace and being professionally engaged in the advocacy of peace and peace conditions, we can not imagine the doctor speaking in a complimentary way of any conditions inimical to peace. In other words, we believe that such is his position and occupation that he may be held to be both a fair and competent observer and honest in presenting his observations. Accepting him as an honest and unprejudiced witness, there is little occasion for surprise that his conclusions do not coincide with the published views of some of those who have gone to Nicaragua, either on their own initiative or sent there as the hirelings of those seeking either political or anti-government ammunition.

And here we have one of the most regrettable phases of national politics. Opposition to governmental policies, whatever they may be, may be expected at all times on the part of those who are opposed to government in any form—the communists, the anarchists and the individuals, societies, leagues, council and other organizations which espouse their so-called cause either because they are in sympathy with it or are their dupes. It is a matter for far greater regret that for a year or two before each presidential election those opposed to all government, law and order are given aid and comfort by attacks on and criticisms of governmental policies which are unwarranted and without justification and made only for partisan advantage. This is not an indictment of any one party. It would be better were the facts such that it could be limited to one party. Unfortunately, it applies to all. It is indeed a sad situation when politicians for the sake of partisan advantage attack and weaken by their attacks the policies of the government, the reins of which they hold out they are seeking that they may make it strong.

And speaking of Lundborg, we wonder how Lindbergh's people back in the Old world spell their name?

The name of the new acting engineer of the state highway department is Wyss. If he is, he will develop some way to build a mile or two of highway without closing off a ten-mile stretch and forcing a twelve-to-fifteen-mile detour.

"I see that the Rev. Stanley A. Hunter says that 'if your religion leads you to pessimism, you may be sure that it is a counterfeit of the genuine article,'" remarked the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today, "which goes to confirm my suspicion that some I have run up against was spurious."

The department of the interior announces that reindeer steaks will soon be on the market, but they are hardly liable to work financial relief to the consumer. The doctors will probably recommend them as a specific for some disease or other.

A Brooklyn county judge apologized to a burglar for giving him a ten-year sentence in Sing Sing, explaining that he was obliged to follow the dictates of a higher court in his, the burglar's case. That's the course which makes some courts criminal factories.

Prefect Bonju of the Seine has ordered removed all electric signs in Paris that do not advertise goods actually sold on the premises. Think of the transformation which would be worked in New York's "Great White Way" and those of the other larger cities and seaside resorts should the Parisian plan be followed over here! And why should not that plan be followed? Why should cities be disfigured day and night by such electric signs?

The wife of Lionel Barrymore has been sued for $4,000,000 as the outcome of a real estate deal in which she was interested as a purchaser. Husbands whose wives have initiative like that should not neglect to caution 'em to stear clear of real estate deals.

The wife of James Eads How is suing him for divorce, setting up that the "Millionaire Hobo" prefers "Mulligan stew" out of a tin can to the best dinner she is able to prepare for him. We have known men like that, but it wasn't in their cases, so much lack of taste on their part as lack of culinary ability on the part of their wives, who happened to be shining members of the Can Opener league.

A silver dollar, playfully dropped into his open mouth while he was asleep sixteen days before, was removed from the esophagus of a little Utah boy, Wednesday. Little girls around here do not play such tricks on their brothers; they wouldn't know where to get the silver dollars.

Mme. Rosika Schwimmer, who attained special fame by organizing the Henry Ford expedition to "get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas," is suing a New York paper and the writer of an article it ran for $100,000 for libel in referring to her as a "red" and a "spy" during the World war, and sets up that she was commissioned to carry a message from President Wilson to the governments of the Central powers. Almost anything may be said of a president—after he is dead.

JUST LIKE A KID WITH FIREWORKS.

Pure Air a Need of Life.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Habit is a strange thing. And when we study our habits one by one, we learn how inconsistent we really are. I'll give you an example:

Suppose you were to come to my house and wanted to wash your hands. Suppose I took you to a soiled wash bowl with dirty water and offered you a soiled towel. What would you do?

If I stood by to watch, you would gingerly dip the ends of your fingers in the water, scowl at the dirty towel and take out your handkerchief to dry your fingers. As soon as possible, without openly insulting me, you would take your departure, vowing never to visit my home again.

If I handed you a dirty glass, filled with dirty water, in response to your request for a drink, you would dash it in my face and challenge me to a duel. I wouldn't blame you.

You wouldn't eat from a soiled plate, with a fork covered with dried food from previous use. Why not?

Of course, these questions demand no answer. It is perfectly apparent why.

But why are we so fastidious about what we take into our mouths, when we are so indifferent as to what we take into our noses and lungs? We won't eat dirt, but we are perfectly willing to breathe dirty air.

I can invite you into a room having an atmosphere filled with smoke, fumes and germs. Without the slightest hesitation you walk in, giving no thought to what such air means to your health. You balk at the dirty water and unclean dishes, but you are indifferent to a more important form of filth.

Not long ago a prominent health official made a serious charge against polluted air. He considers that foul air, heavy with soot and poisonous gases, is the cause of sixty per cent, more deaths than all the infectious diseases combined.

The lungs of coal miners are packed with black soot. Just as water pipes become clogged with the deposits from the fluid, the lungs become clogged with the impurities breathed in with unclean air.

Nothing is more important than to have during every hour of our lives an abundance of pure air. Too often, skinny, emaciated, poorly nourished individuals go along without knowledge that all their ills can be traced to poor air and insufficient air.

Food can not nourish and cells can not prosper unless an abundance of pure oxygen is breathed into widely opened lungs. An abundance of good air is as essential as a never failing supply of good food.

Clean hands, a pure heart and a flood of uncontaminated air will insure health and long life.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

M. W. Q—What would cause a pounding in one ear, the right one? The left ear seems all right. The trouble came on after a sick spell a year ago and has persisted ever since.

A—Have your blood pressure tested. This may have a bearing on the condition.

M. J. S. Q—What is the cause of a sty?

A—This condition is usually due to indigestion and constipation. It is advisable to have the eyes examined to see if glasses are needed. For particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

THE VOTE IN NOVEMBER.

There is going to be an election next November. This is not stated as a matter of news. It is pretty generally known throughout the country, and recent reports from Kansas City and present reports from Houston indicate that preparations for it are well under way. Nevertheless, when the time comes for that election, there will be a lot of people who either know nothing about it, who do not care enough about it to vote, or who for some other reason do not vote. In 1924 there were, it is estimated, 56,819,000 eligible citizens of voting age, but only 29,091,417 votes were cast for president in that election. What was the matter with the 27,728,000 citizens who did not vote? Was it because they did not know an election was to be held, or because they were not interested enough to go to the polls? It is hardly probable that many had not heard about the election. It is difficult indeed to believe that any one was not aware of it.

Was it then wholly because of indifference? We do not think so. Indifference is a very potent negative influence in our elections but it is not the only cause of the failure of such a vast number to exercise the franchise. Unquestionably the greatest reason for the decline of the relative number of voters is the granting of the franchise to women. In 1916, when only men were eligible to vote, the percentage of voters at the national election was over seventy-two, and in the ten preceding quadrennial elections the average had been over seventy-five per cent. But in 1920 the women were admitted to the franchise, which doubled the total number of eligible voters, and the percentage of voters that year dropped to forty-nine. In 1924 the percentage was fifty-one. There is little doubt that the male vote in 1920 and 1924 was relatively nearly as great as in 1916. There has been, it is true, a decline in the relative male vote in the past forty years but only once has the percentage of votes to citizens of eligible voting age gone below sixty-seven. That was in 1912 when many citizens refrained from voting but not because of indifference.

In 1920 and 1924 the franchise was new to women. They were not accustomed to voting, had paid comparatively little attention to politics, and it was no easy matter to acquire either knowledge or interest. Millions of them were too timid to thrust themselves into the strange surroundings of the polling places, and other millions were opposed to women taking part in elections. While women are gradually overcoming these objections there is a very large proportion of them who still remain aloof, and it will probably be a long time before they take as general an interest in elections and vote in relatively equal numbers as the men. There is no question, however, that their interest and their participation are increasing rapidly, stimulated by the activities of their own sex, by the growth of newspaper reading among them and the pervasive influence of the radio.

Another influence in holding down the percentage of votes in relation to voting age is the restrictions upon the colored vote in the South. Because of this, and because of the fact that elections in the South are practically settled at the Democratic party primaries, the average of votes in the Southern states is far below the average in other states, and this serves to reduce the percentage of the whole. For example, even the women voting in 1924 the percentage of voters to eligibles in North Central states was sixty-four, while that in the South Central was only twenty-seven. The average for Missouri, which stands eleventh in the ranks of percentage in 1920 and 1924, was sixty-six, which is not so bad.

While it is true that we need to struggle unceasingly against indifference, the situation is not as dangerous as some have painted. And there is reason to believe that the coming election will see a larger vote polled and a larger percentage of voters than in 1920 or 1924. It will be a closely-contested election, with many features to arouse public interest, and its issues and personalities will appeal in an unusual degree to the women voters.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Ancient War.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

I saw recently a radiograph of an arrowhead embedded in the second dorsal vertebrae of a human backbone, and was told that the date of this crime—for crime it was, whether inspired by war or by murder—was twice as ancient as the traditional time of Adam in the Garden of Eden, for it belongs to the Neolithic or later Stone age.

The object was found by Dr. Morel, a well-known archeologist, in the grotto of Sainte Enemie, Department of Lozere, France. The arrowhead, of polished flint, entered flatwise by the second intercostal space on the right-hand side of the victim. The bone was but slightly injured and the marrow not touched. Dr. Baudouin, who diagnosed the injury, notwithstanding its age of many thousand years, avers that the subject died subsequently to this injury from some other cause, for the wound itself could not have been mortal. Yet the interval between the reception of the injury and death was not great, for there is no indication of a natural process of reparation of the injured bone having begun.

This is by no means the first example of the finding of arrowheads fixed in human vertebrae of prehistoric date, although it is said to be unique in some particulars. It may be significant that another of these curious objects was found in the same department, Lozere, several years ago. In that case, too, a flint arrowhead had penetrated a human backbone, and it was found possible to lift a little corner of the curtain of time covering the tragedy. Experts decided that the victim had been one of the dolichocephalic—long-headed—paleolithic—Old Stone age—inhabitants of the Lozere region, while the weapon that inflicted his death was of the kind made by the later neolithic invaders who belonged to the brachycephalic—broad-headed—race of the Cro-Magnons, who apparently swept their less-advanced predecessors out of existence.

It would appear, then, that these are truly relics of ancient war, war antedating the oldest struggles known to history, between different races of men contending for the mastery of the world. The Book of Genesis tells us that man was commanded to "subdue" the earth. This evidently implied that he would have to do battle with his own kind, for there were not only wild beasts to be mastered, but inferior races of his own species, who would not willingly surrender their birthright or become slaves to those stronger than themselves.

Cain's murder of Abel was a symbol of the coming reign of war, and from it we may perceive that it was not ordained that the victor should always be in every way the more excellent of the contending parties, for Abel was a better man in the eyes of the Lord than his slayer, and apparently he possessed higher qualities. But the qualities of jealousy and murder introduced through Cain were made to last. And even now, when our mastery of nature's forces has progressed so far that we are able to employ mysterious, invisible rays to reveal and picture the insides of our bodies and our bones, and even to aid in disclosing the long hidden and forgotten secrets of the most ancient graves, the twin demons of murder and war, which darkened man's career on his first emergence from Paradise, continue to pursue him and whisper madness in his ear.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Gov. Al Smith One of Most Arresting, Interesting and Controversial Figures in American Politics

Story of His Life Reads Like Tale From Fictions's Fantastic Pages

To describe Al Smith merely as "a child of destiny" is but to confess the poverty and inadequacy of words. He is more than that, this son of poor immigrant parents, whose birthplace was the noisy tenement district of the lower East Side, and whose boyhood playground and workshop was the "sidewalks of New York." He is loved and feared to the point of obsession, loved and admired to the point of idolatry, there has been no more consistently, arresting nor interesting figure in a century and a half of American politics than this man who has risen from a newsboy and fish peddler and the squalid tenements to a serious contender for the Presidency of the United States.

He is the first Catholic in American history to be nominated by a major political party for office. That in itself attests the progress and the arresting personality of the man. His Catholicism and his anti-prohibition views constituted the greatest barriers to his nomination. Far lesser handicaps have kept the prize from other men.

Like Fiction Tale

The story of Al Smith's life reads like a tale from one of fiction's fantastic pages. Had Horatio Alger written one of his innumerable novels around a career so outstanding, tracing it from its beginning down in the "tough" section of New York, up through the hard-boiled wards of the great city, into municipal politics and thence into the governor's chair, and finally to within striking distance of the White House, practical people would have dismissed it with a laugh as fiction too imaginative to be true. And yet it is true, and the story becomes an epic of American opportunity and its fulfillment. Certainly there is no stranger story in American politics.

Al Smith is 57 years old, and each of those 57 years have been filled with fight and controversy and struggle against natural handicaps. He fought other newsboys, tough little Italian, Jewish and Irish lads for advantageous corners on which to sell his papers as a boy. He fought them later for the fish trade that he plied from a cart which he pushed himself through the teeming and torrid streets. He had to fight to exist. His father was dead when he was still a kid, and he, young Al, was the principal support of a mother and sister in Oliver st.

At Parochial School

Somehow, perhaps by a good deal of sacrifice on his mother's part, the boy managed to get an education, or the rudiments of one from the parochial schools of his neighborhood. When he wasn't peddling newspapers and fish he attended St. James parochial school in Cherry st in the old fourth ward.

With the natural aptitude of the Irish for politics this mother was a Malvehill; young Al began to take an interest in ward affairs after he outgrew the gangling age. In those days the Irish and the Germans ran the wards, mostly from the saloons of the district, and the rivalry was intense, not alone as between the races, but as between factions. Al's father was German; his mother was Irish.

In 1894, "Tim" Campbell ran for Congress from the district. He noticed young Al as a likely looking youngster, who had had the tenacity of purpose to obtain some education and who seemed to have a flair for making friends and public speaking. That was Al Smith's first break into politics, his speaking for Campbell.

A year later he got his first political job, a clerkship in commissioner of Jurors' department. He was then 22 years old. About that time Tom Foley, who later became noted as one of the big figures of Tammany, decided to contest the Fourth Ward leadership with Pat Divver. Al was a hustler and had friends. Foley needed a hustler who had friends, so the youngster became Side politics, and a friendship began that lasted until the death of Foley many years later. Thus it was that Tom Foley became known as "Al Smith's political godfather."

Showed Gratitude

They won that fight. Foley, in gratitude, threw various things young Al's way, and the years rolled on. In 1903, when he was 30, young Al decided that he wanted something better than ordinary ward politics. He had been studying law at Fordham and at Manhattan College and he was ambitious. He decided he would like to go to the Assembly, and Foley and the organization put him there.

At Albany Smith found himself in a new and different environment from any he had ever known. He began to learn that there was a higher statesmanship than that of city politics.

He met there men, cultured and wealthy and educated men, from all parts of the state; his vision began to broaden and he began to grow politically. He had a natural aptitude for politics and for administration. He progressed rapidly, first to the speakership of the Assembly and then to the leadership of his party in the legislature, whether the Democrats were in power or not. He was either majority or minority leader from then on until 1915 when he resigned to become Sheriff of New York.

Born on East Side of New York; Father German and Mother Irish

Throughout these years in the legislature Al Smith studied. He was a raw novice in legislative matters when he went to Albany. Yet so earnestly did he work, and so rapidly did he broaden that Elihu Root paid him the compliment in 1915 at the constitutional convention of saying that he had one of the "finest administrative brains in New York."

Leaves Legislature

He left the legislature regretfully because the financial demands of his large and growing family made it necessary. The sheriffship of New York is a remunerative position, with its fees and emoluments.

The sheriff's office, however, was not attractive save in a financial way, and after two years of it Smith quit and became president of the New York Board of Aldermen, a responsible office more in keeping with his liking and talents.

Several years in that office, he ran for governor and was elected. That was in 1919. Since then, with the exception of one defeat, he occupied the executive mansion at Albany, and even his opponents have been forced to admit that his administrations have been successful. For the most part he has been hampered by having to deal with Republican legislatures, but notwithstanding this handicap he has effected widespread reforms in the state government.

His hold on the electorate of New York is without parallel in New York politics. Thrice he has been elected to the governorship while the rest of his party went down to defeat. He has run ahead of his ticket every time he has been up. The outstanding example of his popularity was in 1924 when Coolidge carried the state for president by an overwhelming vote, but Smith carried it, too, by half a million votes against Theodore Roosevelt.

Subtle Attacks

The attack on Gov. Smith on religious grounds, while it has not been as open as on his "wet record," has nevertheless been subtle and far reaching.

It culminated a year and a half ago when Charles C. Marshall, an Episcopalian lawyer in New York, published a remarkably frank open letter to Gov. Smith asking him how he could reconcile his duty to his church with his loyalty to the American constitution. Marshall pointed out a tenet of the Catholic faith was the omnipotence of the Church, and he asked whether as a President of the United States Smith would recognize the supremacy of the Constitution or that of his Church in the case of conflict. Marshall's letter was no piece of demagoguery. It was a sober, dignified, and intelligent inquiry, and Gov. Smith took immediate cognizance of the fact.

His reply constituted one of the most remarkable contributions to religio-political discussion on record. He avowed his complete faith in the absolute separation of the church and state, and declared there was nothing in his Catholicism that would militate against his faithful adherence to the Constitution.

"I recognize no power in the institution of my church to interfere with the Constitution of the United States or in the enforcement of the law of the land," he said.

"I believe in absolute freedom of conscience for all men and in equality of all churches, all sects, and all beliefs before the law as a matter of right and not as a matter of favor.

Freedom of Conscience

"I believe in the absolute separation of church and state, and in the strict enforcement of the provision of the Constitution that Congress shall make no laws respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

"I believe that no tribunal of any church has any power to make any decree of any force in the law of the land, other than to establish the status of its own communicants within its own church.

"I believe in the support of the public school as one of the cornerstones of American liberty.

"I believe in the right of every parent to choose whether his child shall be educated in the public school or in a religious school supported by those of his own faith.

"I believe in the non-interference by this country in the internal affairs of other nations, and that we should stand steadfastly against such interference by whomsoever it is urged.

"I believe in the common brotherhood of man under the fatherhood of God.

"In this spirit I join with fellow-Americans of all creeds in a fervent prayer that never again in this land will any public servant be challenged because of the faith in which he has tried to walk humbly with his God."

Explains Position

The governor's letter, a lengthy one, in which he went into some detail to explain his position, made it clear that, to his mind, there are Catholics and Catholics in America.

"You seem to think," he said to Marshall, "that Catholics must be all alike in mind and heart, as though they had been pulled into and taken out of the same mold.

"You have no more right to ask me to defend as part of my faith every statement coming from a prelate than I should have to ask you to explain or defend all the utterances which have come from individuals of your religious faith, some of which, in my opinion, have been unfortunate, and some of which, in my opinion, have been wholly indefensible.

"Catholics are entitled to the same freedom of opinion in the matter of [illegible] as are Protestants. [illegible] Catholic Church [illegible] Protestant Church [illegible] Catholic Church [illegible] Protestant Church [illegible] Catholic Church [illegible] Protestant Church

250 Attend Wesley Bible Class Progessive Party

More than 250 persons attended the "trip-around-the-world," progressive party given by members of Ladies' Bible class, Wesley M. E. church, last night. A neat sum was cleared by the class.

The "trip" began at the church, decorated to represent the United States, continued to the home of Mrs. D. R. Fritch, Pies av, which was decorated as Ireland and where an Irish stew was served. At Germany, the home of Mrs. Mabel Hoover, 736 Silver st., sauer kraut, weiners and rye bread sandwiches were served. Mrs. Claude Burke entertained with several vocal selections in German.

The next stop was at the home of Mrs. Ino Heth, 675 East Fleming pl. The rooms were decorated to represent France and punch was served. Italy, the home of Mrs. John Cudd, 599 Forest st, was the next stop, and there spaghetti was served. At the home of Mrs. George Keefer, 631 Miami st., the rooms were decorated to represent China and rice was served.

The home of Mrs. James Barkley, 341 Vine place, the last stop, represented Brazil, and there coffee was served.

N. J. Riemat, teacher of the class, acted as traffic manager, directing the motor cars in which the guests were transported from "country to country."

Epworth Circle, No. 7, Meets With Mrs. Homer Waddell

Circle No. 7, of Epworth M. E. Church, met yesterday afternoon with large attendance at the home of Mrs. Homer Waddell, S. Vine st. Devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Fred Barnhart and roll call was answered by giving Bible quotations.

Mrs. D. H. Harvey gave a complete report of the activities of the circle this year. Mrs. B. L. George talked on the coming convention of foreign missionary societies to be held in October at Epworth church.

Installation of officers of the circle for the coming year was held and it was decided that no more meetings would be held until September. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. A. N. Grimes and Mrs. C. C. Pettit.

GUESTS ENTERTAINED AT CIRCLE MEETING

Mrs. Don Jones and Mrs. Ralph Cheney were guests at a meeting of members of Circle No. 12, Epworth M. E. Church yesterday afternoon with Mrs. L. G. Jones, East Center st. Regular routine business of the circle was transacted and it was decided to discontinue meetings through July and August. A lunch was served by the hostess and a social time enjoyed. The circle will meet again the last Thursday in September.

Social Activities

ONE of the lovely affairs of the summer was the reception given last night at "Etowah," Mt. Vernon av., home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hoover Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reber King. Garden flowers formed a color note through the rooms, and the grounds were beautifully lighted. An attractively appointed lunch was served to their guests from this city and a number of out-of-town guests.

The Mystery at Styles

THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

CHAPTER 30

My pleasing thoughts were interrupted by the sudden entrance of Miss Howard. She glanced around hastily to make sure there was no one else in the room, and quickly produced an old sheet of brown paper. This she handed to Poirot, murmuring as she did so the cryptic words:

"On top of the wardrobe." Then she hurriedly left the room.

Poirot unfolded the sheet of paper eagerly, and uttered an exclamation of satisfaction. He spread it out on the table.

"Come here, Hastings. Now tell me, what is that initial—J. or L.?"

It was a medium sized sheet of paper, rather dusty, as though it had lain by for some time. But it was the label that was attracting Poirot's attention. At the top, it bore the printed stamp of Messrs. Parkson's the well known theatrical costumiers, and it was addressed to "— (the debatable initial!) Cavendish, Esq., Styles Court, Styles St. Mary, Essex."

"It might be T, or it might be L," I said, after studying the thing for a minute or two. "It certainly isn't a J."

"Good," replied Poirot, folding up the paper again. "I, also, am of your way of thinking. It is an L, depend upon it."

"Where did it come from?" I asked curiously. "Is it important?"

"Moderately so. It confirms a surmise of mine. Having deduced its existence I set Miss Howard to search for it, and, as you see, she has been successful."

"What did she mean by 'On top of the wardrobe?'"

"She meant," replied Poirot promptly, "that she found it on top of a wardrobe."

"A funny place for a piece of brown paper," I mused.

"Not at all. The top of a wardrobe is an excellent place for brown paper and cardboard boxes. I have kept them there myself. Nearly all ornaments there is nothing to offend the eye."

"Poirot," I asked earnestly, "have you made up your mind about this crime?"

"Yes—that is to say, I believe I know how it was committed."

"Ah!"

"Unfortunately, I have no proof beyond my surmise, unless——" With sudden energy, he caught me by the arm, and whirled me down the hall, calling out in French in his excitement: "Mademoiselle Dorcas, Mademoiselle Dorcas, un moment, s'il vous plait."

Dorcas, quite flurried by the noise, came hurrying out of the pantry.

"My good Dorcas, I have an idea—a little idea—if it should prove justified, what a magnificent chance! Tell me, on Monday, not Tuesday, Dorcas, but Monday, the day before the tragedy, did anything go wrong with Mrs. Inglethorp's bell?"

Dorcas looked very surprised.

"Yes sir, now you mention it, it did; though I don't know how you came to hear of it. A mouse, or some such, must have nibbled the wire through. The man came and put it right on Tuesday morning."

With a long drawn exclamation of ecstasy, Poirot led the way back to the morning-room.

"See you, one should not ask for outside proof—no, reason should be enough. But the flesh is weak, it is consolation to find that one is on the right track. Ah, my friend, I am like a giant refreshed. I run! I leap!"

And, in very truth, run and leap he did, gamboling wildly down the stretch of lawn outside the long window.

"What is your remarkable little friend doing?" asked a voice behind me, and I turned to find Mary Cavendish at my elbow. She smiled, and so did I. "What is it all about?"

"Really I can't tell you. He asked Dorcas some question about a bell and appeared so delighted with her answer that he is capering about as you see!"

Mary laughed.

"How ridiculous! He's going out of the gate. Isn't he coming back to-day?"

"I don't know. I've given up trying to guess what he'll do next."

"Is he quite mad, Mr. Hastings?"

"I honestly don't know. Sometimes, I feel sure he is as mad as a hatter, and then, just as he is at his maddest, I find there is method in his madness."

"I see."

In spite of her laugh, Mary was looking thoughtful this morning. She seemed grave, almost sad.

It occurred to me that it would be a good opportunity to tackle her on the subject of Cynthia. I began rather tactfully, I thought, but I had not gone far before she stopped me authoritatively.

"You are an excellent advocate, I have no doubt, Mr. Hastings, but in this case your talents are quite thrown away. Cynthia will run no risk of encountering any unkindness from me."

I began to stammer feebly that I hoped she hadn't thought—But again she stopped me, and her words were so unexpected that they quite drove Cynthia, and her troubles, out of my mind.

"Mr. Hastings," she said, "do you think I and my husband are happy together?"

I was considerably taken aback, and murmured something about its not being my business to think anything of the sort.

"Well," she said quietly, "whether it is your business or not, I will tell you that we are not happy."

I said nothing, for I saw that she had not finished.

She began slowly, walking up and down the room, her head a little bent, and that slim, supple figure of hers swaying gently as she walked. She stopped suddenly, and looked up at me.

"You don't know anything about me, do you?" she asked. "Where I come from, who I was before I married John—anything, in fact? Well, I will tell you. I will make a father confessor of you. You are kind, I think—yes, I am sure you are kind."

Somehow, I was not quite as elated as I might have been. I remembered that Cynthia had begun her confidences in much the same way. Besides, a father confessor should be elderly, it is not at all the role for a young man.

"My father was English," said Mrs. Cavendish, "but my mother was a Russian."

"Ah," I said, "now I understand."

"Understand what?"

"A hint of something foreign—different—that there has always been about you."

"My mother was very beautiful, I believe. I don't know, because I never saw her. She died when I was quite a little child. I believe there was some tragedy connected with her death—she took an overdose of some sleeping draught by mistake. However that may be, my father was broken-hearted. Shortly afterwards, he went into the consular service. Everywhere he went, I went with him. When I was 23, I had been nearly all over the world. It was a splendid life—I loved it."

There was a smile on her face, and her head was thrown back. She seemed living in the memory of those old glad days.

"Then my father died. He left me very badly off. I had to go and live with some old aunts in Yorkshire." She shuddered. "You will understand me when I say that it was a deadly life for a girl brought up as I had been. The narrowness, the deadly monotony of it, almost drove me mad." She paused a minute, and added in a different tone: "And then I met John Cavendish."

"Yes?"

"You can imagine that, from my aunt's point of view, it was a very good match for me. But I can honestly say it was not this fact which weighed with me. No, he was simply a way of escape from the insufferable monotony of my life."

Love's Awakening

THE HEART STORY OF A WOMAN'S AFFECTIONS

By ADELE GARRISON

Princess Olina Resumes Her Love Contest

THE attitude of Philip Veritzen toward Princess Olina of Transvania would be a seven days' wonder to his intimates if they could see it. While his natural arrogance—explained to me by his revelation that he was closely related, though by "bar sinister" to the royal family of Transvania—always has been softened by flamboyant courtesy where women are concerned, yet he is said never to forget even in the presence of those he most admires that "wherever the Douglas sits is the head of the table." But whenever he is the same room with the young princess for whose future and that of his son he entertains such fantastic plans, his attitude is so self-effacing, so humble as to be almost servile.

I could imagine his resentment if any other girl—Mary Harrison, for instance—had kept him waiting while she so prolonged her greeting of her hostess that he was left in the position of standing awkwardly by with no opportunity of even uttering a greeting. But when Princess Olina threw him a casual apology for what really amounted to a rudeness on her part, his smile was as deprecating as if he, not she, were at fault.

"My dear child!" he said, with one of his most impressive bows. "I am only too happy to await your pleasure. But," he turned to me with what appeared to be genuine concern, "I have been so anxious ever since I heard the news of the accident from Noel. I was overjoyed to hear you tell Miss Lincoln just now that the little chap is so much better. Are you sure that all danger of any complications is over?"

Even as I answered him with the physician's assurance to us that all was well with our boy, I noted with secret amusement his hesitancy before his utterance of the name by which Princess Olina was known to everyone except the few in her secret. I felt that he was distinctly disgruntled because he could not give her her full title, and wondered that Noel, who by Olina's own request had been kept in ignorance of her identity, did not notice his father's odd behavior.

But a glance at the young violinist told me that his thoughts were focused on but one thing, the query as to Mary Harrison's whereabous. His dark eyes were roving from doorway to window to lawn as if at any moment he might spy her. I might not have been so sure of his state of mind, had I not weeks earlier been the recipient of his agitated confession that he loved Dicky's lovely willful young niece.

I do not know that Olina saw his preoccupation, guessed its meaning and deliberately put a question whose answer she already knew. But from a sudden glitter in her eyes which in her tenderer moods are like great velvety pansies I surmised that her question held a drop of venom in it.

"Where is Mary?" she said. "I haven't seen her since the accident except when we have called here to inquire about Junior."

"I sent her off today for a drive," I answered, hoping devoutly that Olina would not insist upon the name of Mary's cavalier. "She has been perfectly tireless ever since the accident. I really do not know what I should have done without her and Marion. But today I didn't need her, and I fancied that she was looking worn, so I banished her."

"Ah!" Olina accompanied the exclamation with a significant little laugh. "That explains the activities of our friend, Mr. Jackson. I telephoned him this forenoon asking him to come over for a game of tennis—Noel had gone to meet his father and I was lonely—" she flashed a provocative glance at Noel and he smiled back at her—dutifully—it is the only word to describe it. "And George—George—I never shall get your American names straight—said that he was going down to Montauk for luncheon, but he never hinted the name of the person he was going to take with him. Just wait till I see him. I'll teach him not to be so secretive. Of course that's where Mary is, not so?"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

When I woke up this morning I looked at Jubilee a long time, and I said to him he was a poor simp for not liking shortcake and girls, and he wagged his tail like he thought it was a good joke. I bet he thinks I am a poor simp because I do like shortcake and girls. I wrapped him all up in the bedclothes and he had quite a time getting out, and then I let him down by his rope and put on my short britches, and went downstairs.

When I got the milkpail and started for the barn I was glad I am a boy and that there will soon be green peaches and green apples and green cherries and cucumbers a fella can put salt on and eat. And pretty soon now we can go out to Rocky river and climb up the cliff on the other side and get some corn and roast it in the fire and feed our faces on it and live like Indians. Indians had good times in the summer if they did freeze to death in the winter. In the winter when an Indian wanted a drink he had to go to the river and chop a hole through the ice, and that wasn't any fun, because he didn't have any pants or shirt which was invented by the white men.

When we went to the pasture we went to go over to mudturtle pond and see if we could get some mudturtles, and we didn't see any and the girls were with us so we couldn't go in swimming. So the girls said to us had we ever been deeper in the woods, and we hadn't, so we all did to see what was in there. When we had went quite a ways we came to a little pond about as wide as a room and it was all riley but we could see something moving in it so we knew it was fish, and I went wading in to try and grab one, and when I got in the middle of it Younice screamed and kept screaming and I came running out to see what was the matter and she said the pound was full of snakes. I thought she had a crock in her brain, but we found a place where we could dig with sticks and let the water out, so we worked most all day doing it, and as fast as the water would get a little lower we would find a snake and club it till the water was all out and we had killed 26 snakes, and they were liver colored and nasty looking snakes. Freachy who knows more about snakes than the rest of us said they are a very poison kind. We tied them in bundles with our hairstraps and drug them through town when we took the cows home, and everybody stopped us to look at them. A man said this is the worst year for snakes he has ever seen, and another man said that is what prohibition has done, and they both laughed. My mother screamed and make me bury them and would not let me take my fogstring off.

Younice went in our house and laid down. She felt kinda sickish. Girls are funny.

Allotments in England and Wales numbered 1,079,000 and covered 163,500 acres at the end of 1926, thus was a decrease of about 30,000 allotments on the figure for 1925.

"WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD"

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to walk or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak. My mother-in-law took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she talked me to take it. I am now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicines did what it has done for many other women and are certainly worth their weight in gold. I think I have given quite a fair trial and I expect to take one more bottle of the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Orpha Hancock, R. 2, Box 2, Tully, N. Y.
